ABANDON HOPE FOR MISSING SHIP

NAVAL LOBBY PROBE DEFERRED; SENATE MOVES CAUTIOUSLY

Believe Investigation Of All Influences May Result

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The international situation monopolized senate interest today as investigation of the Shearer naval lobby case was cautiously deferred, as warnings were heard about the prospective disarmament visit of Premier MacDonald and as a dispute arose over the quarantine provisions against foreign nations in the pending tariff bill.

Delay in opening the Shearer inquiry caused considerable cloakroom discussion because of the ticklish situation involved in the proposed scope of the sub-committee hearings.

Under the restricted terms of the resolution authorizing the investigation, it is expected to be confined at the outset to Shearer's Geneva activities, but some senators believe it will be impossible to stop the investigation at that point.

They believe the evidence will necessitate investigation of what Shearer did in the halls of congress during the recent cruiser bill fight and in previous navy legislation disputes. From that point there is but a step to a complete investigation of all the peace and war lobbies of Washington and the money they are spending to influence legislation. The wider inquiry has been suggested by Secretary of State Stimson.

The senate's disarmament interest was accentuated also by announcement that Premier MacDonald will sail from England, September 28 to discuss cruiser limitation at closer range with President Hoover. Although public comment was withheld generally, there was much private comment along the line of the following statement given to the United Press by Senator Claude Swanson, ranking Democratic member of the foreign relations committee:

"I hope there will be an agreement for parity in naval strength and I hope the parity is accomplished by a reduction of the present strength. I think the senate would not ratify a treaty unless it proposed such parity."

The domestic tariff debate assumed an international tinge when the senate became involved in a dispute over the first amendments in the administrative provision, directing the secretary of agriculture to order an embargo against any livestock imported whenever he believes there is danger from the hoof and mouth disease. An embargo now in effect against Argentine has caused a protest from that country. The amendment also conflicts with a second amendment which would restrict the discretion of the secretary in enforcing embargoes against plants. Democrats are seeking to harmonize the two amendments.

Senator Pat Harrison, Dem., Miss., held the floor to deliver a general attack upon the Republican bill. The senate will abandon the usual week end recess to sit tomorrow for further tariff discussion.

JOHNSON TO MERGE AIRPLANE COMPANY

DAYTON, O., Sept. 13.—Negotiations for the merger of the Johnson Airplane and Supply Company with a holding company of Cincinnati, name of which was not reported, have been completed, it has been announced by E. A. Johnson, head of the local firm.

With the completion of the merger Johnson plans to add equipment for flying and servicing of planes at the airport.

The Cincinnati holding company also holds interest in the Metal Aircraft Corporation, the Mason Dixon Air Lines Inc., operating between Cincinnati and Detroit, and the Kansas City Airport, of which Harlow Bredow is head.

SEEK INDICTMENT AGAINST SLAYER

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 13. — A first-degree murder indictment will be sought from the grand jury today by Assistant County Prosecutor Emerich B. Freed against Michael Di Tirro, 35, who calmly confessed yesterday to the murder of his former employer, Mrs. Barbara Irr.

According to his own confession, Tirro shot and killed Mrs. Irr when she refused to re-employ him.

He said she had threatened to have him arrested if he did not cease his constant demands for reinstatement.

If the grand jury returns a first degree murder indictment, the defense will enter a plea of insanity, Salvatore M. Lo Presit retained late yesterday as Tirro's counsel, said.

FOURTEEN ARRESTED IN CONNECTION WITH KIDNAPING CHARGES

BURNED TO DEATH

Congressman O. J. Kvale of Minnesota was found burned to death in his cottage at Fergus Falls, Minn., Sept. 11. From a cursory examination authorities believe an overheated stove caused the blaze.

Three Were Witnesses At Murder Trial; Had Shotguns

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 13.—Fourteen angry citizens who were routed from their beds last night and taken to the sheriff's office on a bench warrant, where they posted $1,000 bond each, were to appear in court here today to answer charges growing out of the kidnaping of three textile strike leaders Monday night.

The warrant charged the men, three of whom were state's witnesses in the Gastonia strikers murder trial, with assault with intent to kill; conspiracy to kidnap and kidnaping; imprisonment and false arrest.

While the arrests were being made in Gastonia, seven members of the National Textile Workers Union, including C. M. Lell, one of the organizers kidnaped Monday night, were lodged in the county jail here charged with illegal transportation of firearms.

E. C. McGinnis, county jailer who took the seven into custody, said they were captured in the act of transporting eight shotguns from a house to an automobile. According to reports, the National Textile workers are preparing for an armed guard to protect themselves Saturday afternoon when they are determined, despite warnings, to again invade the South Gastonia mill district and hold a meeting. Twice they have been repulsed by an angry crowd and on the last occasion several of the speakers were severely beaten.

The concensus of opinion is that there will be a severe battle in Gastonia Saturday. Sheriff Eli P. Lineberger of Gastonia and his men are closely watching the strikers tent colony for the storage of arms. Last night he told the United Press:

"The only way to avoid a serious shooting or a lynching Saturday is for the 'fellow workers' to give up their speaking in South Gastonia. We could not stop those people down there if they once got started."

The seven witnesses who appeared before Judge Shaw here yesterday in his investigation of the kidnaping were subpoenaed to appear again today along with the fourteen men arrested in Gastonia last night. The three state witnesses in the Gastonia murder trial arrested were City Policemen Tom Gilbert, Charles Ferguson and A. J. Roach.

LINDBERGH TO MAKE FLIGHT CHARTING BRAZIL MAIL ROUTE

Enthusiasm Marks Attitude of South American Cities

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 13. — The veritably magic name of Lindbergh was expected today to give new fire in Brazil to the enthusiasm for regular air mail service between the east coasts of North and South Americas.

Announcement that the famous birdman would make a chart-routing flight, has injected lively interest in the subject of air mail between Brazil and the United States already brought before the public by Capt. Ralph O'Neill who blazed the trail from Florida to Buenos Aires via the east coast in the New York-Rio-Buenos Aires line amphibian "Washington."

The Washington, besides being the first plane to make the southbound trip, had the distinction of carrying the first women passengers from the United States to Brazil, Captain O'Neill being accompanied by Mrs. O'Neill and his secretary.

Lindbergh will probably be as rousingly received in South America as he was when he dropped down upon Le Bourget two years ago. Although Brazil has made great strides in aviation, and has been host to such aviators as Franco De Pinedo, Del Prete, Ferrarin, Jiminez, Iglesias, O'Neill and Doolittle, the visit from Lindbergh will call forth great enthusiasm and interest.

Eastern coast cities of South America already are well accustomed to air mail service, being served by the Compagnie Genrale Aeropolstale, a French company, which brings mail from Europe to South America once a week and carries mail to Europe on the same schedule. Recently the Aeropostale organization extended its service to Chile and Paraguay. Last year it traversed 481,185 kilometers and carried 8,112,820 letters a tremendous increase over the 1927 business of 156,421 letters over 69,415 kilometers.

DECLARES $25,000 BOND IS EXCESSIVE

DAYTON, O., Sept. 13.—Asserting that the $25,000 bond fixed in his case by Municipal Judge Null M. Hodapp was unreasonable and excessive Leroy Schmidt, 23, San Diego, Cal., had instituted habeas corpus proceedings in common pleas court today.

He had been arrested charged with selling obscene matter—testimony in the trial of Dr. J. H. Snook and Theora Hix.

Robert C. Patterson, common pleas judge, reduced the bond to $1000 and remanded Schmidt's case to police court for trial.

COMMUTING ALONG RIVER BY AIR NEXT

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 13.—Commuting through the use of amphibian plane service may become a reality along the banks of the Ohio River here if the conference of Phil Love, pal of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, with officials of the Embry-Riddle Aviation Corporation is successfully terminated.

"The banks of the Ohio eventually will be bordered by country homes, all of them spotted from the air before being planned by their owners," declared Ross Wiegand of the Embry-Riddle Corporation in speaking before the Buckeye Club. "Amphibian service might be established along the river as far as thirty miles above and below the business section of Cincinnati. Concrete ramps along the banks would facilitate the picking up of passengers who would be landed downtown in a comparatively short time."

An important factor in the contemplated amphibian service would be the time saved and comfort gained, Embry-Riddle officials believe.

SOVIET ENGINEERS HELD FOR SABOTAGE

LENINGRAD, Sept. 13.—Nine leading engineers and directors of the Soviet shipbuilding trust were arrested today on charges of systematic sabotage aiming at the eventual overthrow of the Soviet government.

It was announced that the high officials had conspired to disrupt the shipbuilding organization by deliberate mismanagement which cost the government $9,000,000 over a period of several years. A number of minor officials also were arrested in connection with the alleged plot.

The alleged conspirators were charged among other things with launching unseaworthy vessels and with far-reaching plans to "overthrow the Soviet regime."

TACT BETTER THAN TEARS

Yank Barber Crashes England By Close Shave; Threatens To Spit In Someone's Eye

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 13.—Louis Arico, New York's international barber, employed first tears and then tact today to crash England without a passport.

He had forgotten that necessary document when he left New York in answer to a summons from William F. Kenny, one of his rich patrons, "to come to London for a vacation."

Broken-heartedly he began bemoaning his troubles, which started when word got around that he was traveling to England to give Kenny a "decent haircut" which the millionaire felt he couldn't get in London.

English barbers, aroused at the report until Louis wirelessed he did not intend to invade their field, made no move to bar their New York colleague. But immigation officials did, when they found he lacked a passport.

Frantic telephone appeals were made to London in Louis' behalf. The ship's purser, sympathizing with the tearful man, offered to post a bond for him, but declared he didn't think Arico had "a Chinaman's chance."

Louis' plea for permission to land, after sailing so far for a vacation, and his diplomatic statement that he intended to learn from British barbers, perhaps getting a haircut from them, finally prevailed over official red tape. He was permitted to land and remain in England until next Tuesday.

In an exclusive interview with the United Press when the steamer docked here, Arico disclosed Kenny never asked him to come to London to give him a haircut.

The barber seemed broken-hearted over the whole incident and seemed to wish he never had set out on the journey. His eyes were full of tears as he said:

"I've become a wreck since the press started talking about me like dis. It was not true. I was not sent by Mr. Kenny to work. No haircut and no shave. Mr. Kenny never invited me for that. He is a very generous man. He simply said:

"'Louie you been a good boy.'

"Therefore he gave me a vacation, I tell you dis much—that if I ever catch the man who told the lie—" he clinched his fists—"I spit in his eye. I tell you I spit in his eye. He spoiled my vacation."

THIEF PICKED WRONG DAY

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 13.—It was a dark, damp morning in early September—Friday the thirteenth of September to be exact.

A cold rain fell intermittently, leaking down raincoat collars.

John Doe, for that's the only name police have for him, arose and looked his horse in the face.

But the horse didn't look at John Doe.

For it was a Friday the thirteenth horse.

It was blind in both eyes, had other glaring defects and was valued, in round figures, at $30, according to Maston Benjamin, from whom it was stolen last night.

Benjamin wonders what John Doe is going to do with the horse, now that he has it.

UNION LEADER SAYS STRIKE PEACE PLAN SHOULD BE ADOPTED

Local Chief Orders Another Vote On Carmen Dispute

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 13.—In response to an ultimatum from the president of the International Carmen's Union that the proposed street car strike settlement should be accepted, Edwin Peyroux, president of the New Orleans local announced today that another vote would be taken.

The striking carmen here turned down overwhelmingly the settlement in balloting Wednesday, despite approval of the plan by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Peyroux's decison came as the violent strike of four months apparently still held possibilities of further bloodshed. Last night speeding automobilists hurled a package containing five sticks of dynamite in front of a street car. It failed to explode.

Hundreds of police and special U. S. deputy marshals patrolled city streets to avert further outbreaks, such as that of Wednesday night when a street car dynamiting forced use of tear gas bombs in a crowd.

WARNS CHURCH

CAMBRIDGE, O., Sept. 13.— A warning that America was making a dangerous experiment in divorcing religion from education, was made by Dr. Edmund D. Soper, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, in addressing ministerial delegates to the eighteenth annual Northeast Ohio M. E. conference. Dr. Soper said separation of church and state made it impossible to bring religion and education together as far as the tax supported schools were concerned. Appointment of pastors will be made Monday afternoon.

MOLDERS' UNION IS URGING INNOCENCE OF THOMAS MOONEY

Declares Further Imprisonment Is Persecution

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 13.—The executive board of the International Molders' Union of North America announced here today that it had adopted the official position that Thomas J. Mooney is innocent and it is persecution to continue his imprisonment in California in connection with 1916 bombings which killed ten persons.

The board met here August 5 to 17 and announced its official action today, declaring their official position has been taken following "revelations made since his imprisonment." The board declared the union's "unqualified belief in the absolute innocence of Thomas J. Mooney," and added "we are firmly convinced that he was the victim of a diabolical conspiracy and wilful frame up by certain interests which hoped to profit through the elimination of his activities."

The board's statement concluded by calling upon C. C. Young, governor of California, to grant Mooney an unconditional pardon.

The bombing in connection with which Mooney was sent to prison, occurred July 22, 1916 during the preparedness day parade. It killed ten persons and injured a number of others gathered to watch the parade.

PREBLE CLERK OF COURTS ACCUSED

DAYTON, O., Sept. 13.—Roy Lake, 32, clerk of the courts of Preble County, will be given a hearing before Judge William C. Wiseman, of Probate Court today, on charges of transportation and possessing intoxicating liquor.

PROPAGANDIST NAMES ADMIRALS

Four rear-admirals were among the naval officers who besought him to work against reduction of U. S. naval armaments in 1924, says William B. Shearer, elaborating on his propaganda campaign for parity in sea ower. Shearer, lower left, avers the admirals were William V. Pratt, upper left, now commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet; Charles P. Plunkett, upper right, then commandant of the New York navy yard, now retired; Samuel S. Robinson, lower right, then in command of the Pacific fleet and now superintendent of the U. S. naval academy, Annapolis, Md., and Henry A. Wiley, former commander-in-chief of the U. GIRL RECEIVES BROKEN BACK WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS ON PIKE

Failure of an unidentified motorist to equip his car with a tail light is held responsible for an auto accident in which Miss Lucille Ireland, 21, daughter of Ernest Ireland, New Burlington Pike, suffered a broken back and minor injuries Thursday night about 7:45 o'clock. Her condition is pronounced as serious by physicians at McClellan Hospital, where she was taken after the accident.

The accident occurred on the Dayton-Xenia Pike, in front of the Greene County Children's Home, one mile west of Xenia.

Miss Ireland was a passenger in a coupe owned and driven by Edgar Gravitt, 19, Wilmington Pike, and also occupied by Miss Helen Conklin, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clement Conklin, Wilmington Pike, and Chancellor Miller, 21 also of the Wilmington Pike.

The car was being driven toward Dayton during a rain which made the highway slippery. Gravitt, it is said, was blinded by the headlights of an approaching car and suddenly saw that the coupe was about to crash into the rear of another machine, traveling in the same direction, which bore no tail light.

When the driver applied the brakes to avert a collision the coupe skidded, left the road and overturned twice. The machine was wrecked.

The two boys and two girls were riding in the front seat. Miss Ireland was the only member of the quartet who was seriously hurt. The Conklin girl received a cut over one eye and on one leg, the Miller boy scratches and bruises and the driver escaped unhurt.

Passing motorists brought the crash victims to Xenia, where their injuries were dressed by Dr. W. T. Ungard. Miss Ireland was later removed to the hospital.

Three of McGinty's employes, Homer J. Klein, assistant manager, Matt Brock and George Launceforth, ticket sellers, were also held under $200 bond each and will face trial at the same time.

It was said authoritatively the difference between the British and United States viewpoints was so small there was every prospect for the final naval agreement which has been long sought.

Morrison, Elizabeth, New Jersey tourists, were told in their death cells today that Governor William Conley did not see fit to extend executive clemency. BAY RUM DECLARED BEVERAGE IN IOWA BY JURY WHICH TESTED SEIZURE CASE

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 13.—Friday the thirteenth dawned unlucky today for the imbibing converts of bay rum, which a jury of four women and two men decided had masqueraded long enough as a harmless face lotion and should be confiscated as an alcoholic beerage from the counters of the five and ten cent store where it has been sold, three ounces for ten cents.

It took the jury near eleven hours to reach a verdict. Their decision, according to reports, was greatly influenced by the ill effects which the debated fluid had upon two of the more courageous jurors who sampled it in the jury room.

The jury retired at 9:30 a. m. yesterday and after hours of argument over the specific definition of the term beverage filed back into the court room at 8:30 last night to report the following verdict:

"We, the jury, find that the bay rum is an intoxicating liquor fit for beverage purposes and should be condemned as such."

BELIEVE VESSEL IS LOST WITH ENTIRE CREW DURING STORM

Dog Stands Vigil Awaiting Return Of 28 Lost Men

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—With the failure of all coastguard, airplane and radio searches, the disappearance of the ship Andaste and its crew of twenty-eight during a storm on Lake Michigan Tuesday seemed destined today to go down in history as another tragedy of the stormy Great Lakes.

With the exception of a shaggy airdale, the Andaste's mascot, which faithfully waited at the dock where the gravel carrier was due three days ago, there were few who had not abandoned hope for the missing ship and its crew, several of whose names probably never will be known.

Air planes and coastguard vessels returned today after searching the entire route on which the Andaste started from Grand Haven, Mich., to Chicago Monday night. They reported no traces of the ship or of lifeboats. Telephone search of all ports along the north and radio contacts with all vessels in that portion of the lake likewise were fruitless.

Officials of the Andaste Steamship Company of Cleveland, owners of the vessel, said they believed that the ship, had it been afloat, could not have been missed during the thorough searches.

A coast guard crew from Kenosha, Wis., picked up two straw hats in the lake about thirty miles southeast of Kenosha along the course which the Andaste was presumed to have taken. The hats were not watersoaked, coastguardsmen said, indicating that they had been in the water only a short time.

The airdale mascot Queenie, had been left behind when Capt. Albert Anderson of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., took the Andaste on the trip to Grand Haven last week Queenie seldom went out with the boat but of the scores of ships that ease past the docks every day she never failed to recognize the toot of the Andaste.

She has been the mascot of the Andaste and the pet of all the workmen at the construction materials company yards for many months and since the ship's disappearance she has paced the dock faithfully awaiting the return of her pals.

Capt. Anderson, 64, has been sailing the Great Lakes for forty-five years and has held a master's license for more than thirty years.

The Andaste's officers, in addition to Anderson, were; Charles Brown, Grand Haven, first mate; Frank Kasperson, Grand Haven second mate; C. J. Kibbey, chief engineer; Ralph Wiley, Benton Harbor, Mich., second engineer and Harry F. Lutz, Benton Harbor, third engineer.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13.—Fear that four of the seven officers aboard the Cleveland-owned gravel carrier Andaste, believed to have sunk in a storm that swept Lake Michigan Tuesday, were Cleveland men was felt here today as reports of the personnel of the crew were made public.

The four Cleveland officers aboard are believed to be Second Mate Joseph McCadde, Chief Engineer C. J. Kibbey, Second Engineer Ralph F. Willie and Third Engineer Harry F. Lutz.

Verification was lacking yet, however, as none is listed in the directory. A. L. Anderson, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., is the captain.

The steamer, loaded to the guards with a sloshing cargo of gravel, steamed out from Grand Haven, Mich., Monday night for Chicago with a crew of twenty-five men.

Her course sent her directly through a violent storm which turned the lake into a churning malestrom of waves.

Had she buffeted the storm successfully she would have docked here Tuesday morning. Instead nothing has been seen or heard of her although she is sixty-five hours overdue. The Andaste carried no radio.

TWO DIE IN CHAIR ON MURDER CHARGES

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Sept. 13.—Two men went to the electric chair at Eddyville Penitentiary here early today and paid with their lives for murder.

Ivan Hutsell, 28, Oldham County, was smiling when he walked to the death chair. He kept a steady front while the attendants were strapping him in the chair. The current was applied twice and he was pronounced dead at 12:21 a. m. He had murdered John Ditchler and his wife, an old couple, about a year ago.

Hutsell's body was taken from the room and Carl Hord, 21, followed. He stalked briskly to the chair, sat down and showed keen interest in proceedings.

"Hello folks," greeted Hord as he walked into the room.

"Well, goodby everybody," he said in passing. "I'm going to a better land I know my sins are all forgiven."

DECLARES $25,000 BOND IS EXCESSIVE

Three Were Witnesses At Murder Trial; Had Shotguns

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 13.—Fourteen angry citizens who were routed from their beds last night and taken to the sheriff's office on a bench warrant, where they posted $1,000 bond each, were to appear in court here today to answer charges growing out of the kidnaping of three textile strike leaders Monday night.

The warrant charged the men, three of whom were state's witnesses in the Gastonia strikers murder trial, with assault with intent to kill; conspiracy to kidnap and kidnaping; imprisonment and false arrest.

While the arrests were being made in Gastonia, seven members of the National Textile Workers Union, including C. M. Lell, one of the organizers kidnaped Monday night, were lodged in the county jail here charged with illegal transportation of firearms.

E. C. McGinnis, county jailer who took the seven into custody, said they were captured in the act of transporting eight shotguns from a house to an automobile. According to reports, the National Textile workers are preparing for an armed guard to protect themselves Saturday afternoon when they are determined, despite warnings, to again invade the South Gastonia mill district and hold a meeting. Twice they have been repulsed by an angry crowd and on the last occasion several of the speakers were severely beaten.

The concensus of opinion is that there will be a severe battle in Gastonia Saturday. Sheriff Eli P. Lineberger of Gastonia and his men are closely watching the strikers tent colony for the storage of arms. Last night he told the United Press:

"The only way to avoid a serious shooting or a lynching Saturday is for the 'fellow workers' to give up their speaking in South Gastonia. We could not stop those people down there if they once got started."

The seven witnesses who appeared before Judge Shaw here yesterday in his investigation of the kidnaping were subpoenaed to appear again today along with the fourteen men arrested in Gastonia last night. The three state witnesses in the Gastonia murder trial arrested were City Policemen Tom Gilbert, Charles Ferguson and A. J. Roach.

COMMUTING ALONG RIVER BY AIR NEXT

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 13.—Commuting through the use of amphibian plane service may become a reality along the banks of the Ohio River here if the conference of Phil Love, pal of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, with officials of the Embry-Riddle Aviation Corporation is successfully terminated.

"The banks of the Ohio eventually will be bordered by country homes, all of them spotted from the air before being planned by their owners," declared Ross Wiegand of the Embry-Riddle Corporation in speaking before the Buckeye Club. "Amphibian service might be established along the river as far as thirty miles above and below the business section of Cincinnati. Concrete ramps along the banks would facilitate the picking up of passengers who would be landed downtown in a comparatively short time."

An important factor in the contemplated amphibian service would be the time saved and comfort gained, Embry-Riddle officials believe.

SOVIET ENGINEERS HELD FOR SABOTAGE

LENINGRAD, Sept. 13.—Nine leading engineers and directors of the Soviet shipbuilding trust were arrested today on charges of systematic sabotage aiming at the eventual overthrow of the Soviet government.

It was announced that the high officials had conspired to disrupt the shipbuilding organization by deliberate mismanagement which cost the government $9,000,000 over a period of several years. A number of minor officials also were arrested in connection with the alleged plot.

The alleged conspirators were charged among other things with launching unseaworthy vessels and with far-reaching plans to "overthrow the Soviet regime."

TACT BETTER THAN TEARS

Yank Barber Crashes England By Close Shave; Threatens To Spit In Someone's Eye

SOUTHAMPTON, Sept. 13.—Louis Arico, New York's international barber, employed first tears and then tact today to crash England without a passport.

He had forgotten that necessary document when he left New York in answer to a summons from William F. Kenny, one of his rich patrons, "to come to London for a vacation."

Broken-heartedly he began bemoaning his troubles, which started when word got around that he was traveling to England to give Kenny a "decent haircut" which the millionaire felt he couldn't get in London.

English barbers, aroused at the report until Louis wirelessed he did not intend to invade their field, made no move to bar their New York colleague. But immigation officials did, when they found he lacked a passport.

Frantic telephone appeals were made to London in Louis' behalf. The ship's purser, sympathizing with the tearful man, offered to post a bond for him, but declared he didn't think Arico had "a Chinaman's chance."

Louis' plea for permission to land, after sailing so far for a vacation, and his diplomatic statement that he intended to learn from British barbers, perhaps getting a haircut from them, finally prevailed over official red tape. He was permitted to land and remain in England until next Tuesday.

In an exclusive interview with the United Press when the steamer docked here, Arico disclosed Kenny never asked him to come to London to give him a haircut.

The barber seemed brokenhearted over the whole incident and seemed to wish he never had set out on the journey. His eyes were full of tears as he said:

"I've become a wreck since the press started talking about me like dis. It was not true. I was not sent by Mr. Kenny to work. No haircut and no shave. Mr. Kenny never invited me for that. He is a very generous man. He simply said:

"'Louie you been a good boy.'

"Therefore he gave me a vacation, I tell you dis much—that if I ever catch the man who told the lie—" he clinched his fists—"I spit in his eye. I tell you I spit in his eye. He spoiled my vacation."

THIEF PICKED WRONG DAY

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 13.—It was a dark, damp morning in early September—Friday the thirteenth of September to be exact.

A cold rain fell intermittently, leaking down raincoat collars.

John Doe, for that's the only name police have for him, arose and looked his horse in the face.

But the horse didn't look at John Doe.

For it was a Friday the thirteenth horse.

It was blind in both eyes, had other glaring defects and was valued, in round figures, at $30, according to Maston Benjamin, from whom it was stolen last night.

Benjamin wonders what John Doe is going to do with the horse, now that he has it.

UNION LEADER SAYS STRIKE PEACE PLAN SHOULD BE ADOPTED

Local Chief Orders Another Vote On Carmen Dispute

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 13.—In response to an ultimatum from the president of the International Carmen's Union that the proposed street car strike settlement should be accepted, Edwin Peyroux, president of the New Orleans local announced today that another vote would be taken.

The striking carmen here turned down overwhelmingly the settlement in balloting Wednesday, despite approval of the plan by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Peyroux's decison came as the violent strike of four months apparently still held possibilities of further bloodshed. Last night speeding automobilists hurled a package containing five sticks of dynamite in front of a street car. It failed to explode.

Hundreds of police and special U. S. deputy marshals patrolled city streets to avert further outbreaks, such as that of Wednesday night when a street car dynamiting forced use of tear gas bombs in a crowd.

WARNS CHURCH

CAMBRIDGE, O., Sept. 13.— A warning that America was making a dangerous experiment in divorcing religion from education, was made by Dr. Edmund D. Soper, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, in addressing ministerial delegates to the eighteenth annual Northeast Ohio M. E. conference. Dr. Soper said separation of church and state made it impossible to bring religion and education together as far as the tax supported schools were concerned. Appointment of pastors will be made Monday afternoon.

YPRES TO VISIT U. S.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Lord Ypres, son of the late Field Marshal, plans to leave for the United States shortly to exhibit his paintings. Lord Ypres paints his pictures in a studio built in the garden of his home, Ivy House, built during the reign of William III.

MOLDERS' UNION IS URGING INNOCENCE OF THOMAS MOONEY

Declares Further Imprisonment Is Persecution

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 13.—The executive board of the International Molders' Union of North America announced here today that it had adopted the official position that Thomas J. Mooney is innocent and it is persecution to continue his imprisonment in California in connection with 1916 bombings which killed ten persons.

The board met here August 5 to 17 and announced its official action today, declaring their official position has been taken following "revelations made since his imprisonment." The board declared the union's "unqualified belief in the absolute innocence of Thomas J. Mooney," and added "we are firmly convinced that he was the victim of a diabolical conspiracy and wilful frame up by certain interests which hoped to profit through the elimination of his activities."

The board's statement concluded by calling upon C. C. Young, governor of California, to grant Mooney an unconditional pardon.

The bombing in connection with which Mooney was sent to prison, occurred July 22, 1916 during the preparedness day parade. It killed ten persons and injured a number of others gathered to watch the parade.

PREBLE CLERK OF COURTS ACCUSED

DAYTON, O., Sept. 13.—Roy Lake, 32, clerk of the courts of Preble County, will be given a hearing before Judge William C. Wiseman, of Probate Court today, on charges of transportation and possessing intoxicating liquor.

Lake was arrested by sheriff's deputies here Wednesday, following a collision in which his auto figured. Two gallons of liquor were found on the rear seat of the car, officers claimed.

ADOPT PROTOCOL

GENEVA, Sept. 13.—The first commission of the League of Nations assembly unanimously adopted the Root protocol today, accepting the United States senate's five reservations for adhesion of that country to the world court.

PROPAGANDIST NAMES ADMIRALS

Four rear-admirals were among the naval officers who besought him to work against reduction of U. S. naval armaments in 1924, says William B. Shearer, elaborating on his propaganda campaign for parity in sea ower. Shearer, lower left, avers the admirals were William V. Pratt, upper left, now commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet; Charles P. Plunkett, upper right, then commandant of the New York navy yard, now retired; Samuel S. Robinson, lower right, then in command of the Pacific fleet and now superintendent of the U. S. naval academy, Annapolis, Md., and Henry A. Wiley, former commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, now retired. Shearer is suing three shipbuilding firms for additional pay he alleges is due him.

GIRL RECEIVES BROKEN BACK WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS ON PIKE

Failure of an unidentified motorist to equip his car with a tail light is held responsible for an auto accident in which Miss Lucille Ireland, 21, daughter of Ernest Ireland, New Burlington Pike, suffered a broken back and minor injuries Thursday night about 7:45 o'clock. Her condition is pronounced as serious by physicians at McClellan Hospital, where she was taken after the accident.

The accident occurred on the Dayton-Xenia Pike, in front of the Greene County Children's Home, one mile west of Xenia.

Miss Ireland was a passenger in a coupe owned and driven by Edgar Gravitt, 19, Wilmington Pike, and also occupied by Miss Helen Conklin, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clement Conklin, Wilmington Pike, and Chancellor Miller, 21 also of the Wilmington Pike.

The car was being driven toward Dayton during a rain which made the highway slippery. Gravitt, it is said, was blinded by the headlights of an approaching car and suddenly saw that the coupe was about to crash into the rear of another machine, traveling in the same direction, which bore no tail light.

When the driver applied the brakes to avert a collision the coupe skidded, left the road and overturned twice. The machine was wrecked.

The two boys and two girls were riding in the front seat. Miss Ireland was the only member of the quartet who was seriously hurt. The Conklin girl received a cut over one eye and on one leg, the Miller boy scratches and bruises and the driver escaped unhurt.

Passing motorists brought the crash victims to Xenia, where their injuries were dressed by Dr. W. T. Ungard. Miss Ireland was later removed to the hospital.

TRACK OPERATOR TO BE TRIED SOON

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 13.—Thomas J. (Tommy) McGinty, operator of the Bainbridge Park horse racing track, will be tried in probate court September 23 on charges of violating state laws forbidding betting at horse races.

This was assured last night when he was bound over to probate court under $200 bond after a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace A. M. Ladd in the town hall, at Clariden, Geuaga County.

Three of McGinty's employes, Homer J. Klein, assistant manager, Matt Brock and George Launceforth, ticket sellers, were also held under $200 bond each and will face trial at the same time.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 13. — There should be plenty of good luck ahead for New Hampshire fishermen. State officials have announced that 17,000,000 fish eggs will be placed in the waters of the state this year—a 50 per cent increase over any previous year.

BAY RUM DECLARED BEVERAGE IN IOWA BY JURY WHICH TESTED SEIZURE CASE

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 13. —Friday the thirteenth dawned unlucky today for the imbibing converts of bay rum, which a jury of four women and two men decided had masqueraded long enough as a harmless face lotion and should be confiscated as an alcoholic beerage from the counters of the five and ten cent store where it has been sold, three ounces for ten cents.

It took the jury near eleven hours to reach a verdict. Their decision, according to reports, was greatly influenced by the ill effects which the debated fluid had upon two of the more courageous jurors who sampled it in the jury room.

The jury retired at 9:30 a. m. yesterday and after hours of argument over the specific definition of the term beverage filed back into the court room at 8:30 last night to report the following verdict:

"We, the jury, find that the bay rum is an intoxicating liquor fit for beverage purposes and should be condemned as such."

BELIEVE VESSEL IS LOST WITH ENTIRE CREW DURING STORM

Dog Stands Vigil Awaiting Return Of 28 Lost Men

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—With the failure of all coastguard, airplane and radio searches, the disappearance of the ship Andaste and its crew of twenty-eight during a storm on Lake Michigan Tuesday seemed destined today to go down in history as another tragedy of the stormy Great Lakes.

With the exception of a shaggy airdale, the Andaste's mascot, which faithfully waited at the dock where the gravel carrier was due three days ago, there were few who had not abandoned hope for the missing ship and its crew, several of whose names probably never will be known.

Air planes and coastguard vessels returned today after searching the entire route on which the Andaste started from Grand Haven, Mich., to Chicago Monday night. They reported no traces of the ship or of lifeboats. Telephone search of all ports along the north and radio contacts with all vessels in that portion of the lake likewise were fruitless.

Officials of the Andaste Steamship Company of Cleveland, owners of the vessel, said they believed that the ship, had it been afloat, could not have been missed during the thorough searches.

A coast guard crew from Kenosha, Wis., picked up two straw hats in the lake about thirty miles southeast of Kenosha along the course which the Andaste was presumed to have taken. The hats were not watersoaked, coastguardsmen said, indicating that they had been in the water only a short time.

The airdale mascot Queenie, had been left behind when Capt. Albert Anderson of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., took the Andaste on the trip to Grand Haven last week Queenie seldom went out with the boat but of the scores of ships that ease past the docks every day she never failed to recognize the toot of the Andaste.

She has been the mascot of the Andaste and the pet of all the workmen at the construction materials company yards for many months and since the ship's disappearance she has paced the dock faithfully awaiting the return of her pals.

Capt. Anderson, 64, has been sailing the Great Lakes for forty-five years and has held a master's license for more than thirty years.

The Andaste's officers, in addition to Anderson, were; Charles Brown, Grand Haven, first mate; Frank Kasperson, Grand Haven second mate; C. J. Kibbey, chief engineer; Ralph Wiley, Benton Harbor, Mich., second engineer and Harry F. Lutz, Benton Harbor, third engineer.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13.—Fear that four of the seven officers aboard the Cleveland-owned gravel carrier Andaste, believed to have sunk in a storm that swept Lake Michigan Tuesday, were Cleveland men was felt here today as reports of the personnel of the crew were made public.

The four Cleveland officers aboard are believed to be Second Mate Joseph McCadde, Chief Engineer C. J. Kibbey, Second Engineer Ralph F. Willie and Third Engineer Harry F. Lutz.

Verification was lacking yet, however, as none is listed in the directory. A. L. Anderson, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., is the captain.

The steamer, loaded to the guards with a sloshing cargo of gravel, steamed out from Grand Haven, Mich., Monday night for Chicago with a crew of twenty-five men.

Her course sent her directly through a violent storm which turned the lake into a churning malestrom of waves.

Had she buffeted the storm successfully she would have docked here Tuesday morning. Instead nothing has been seen or heard of her although she is sixty-five hours overdue. The Andaste carried no radio.

MAC DONALD TO SAIL ON SEPTEMBER 28

LONDON, Sept. 13.— Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald will sail for the United States aboard the Berengaria on Sept. 28, it was announced officially today.

The announcement was made after Charles G. Dawes, United States ambassador to London, had called on Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald and delivered President Hoover's answer to the British viewpoint on the respective cruiser demands of the two countries. The conference lasted about an hour.

It was said authoritatively the difference between the British and United States viewpoints was so small there was every prospect for the final naval agreement which has been long sought.

SLAYERS DENIED EXECUTIVE HELP

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Sept. 13.—Walter E. Wilmot and Millard F. Morrison, Elizabeth, New Jersey tourists, were told in their death cells today that Governor William Conley did not see fit to extend executive clemency. They will be hanged tonight at 9 o'clock for the murder of Frank Bowden, filling station operator.

The men told Warden L. M. Robinson they had made peace with God.

Wilmot's seventeen-year-old wife said farewell to him today.

TWO DIE IN CHAIR ON MURDER CHARGES

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Sept. 13.—Two men went to the electric chair at Eddyville Penitentiary here early today and paid with their lives for murder.

Ivan Hutsell, 28, Oldham County, was smiling when he walked to the death chair. He kept a steady front while the attendants were strapping him in the chair. The current was applied twice and he was pronounced dead at 12:21 a. m. He had murdered John Ditchler and his wife, an old couple, about a year ago.

Hutsell's body was taken from the room and Carl Hord, 21, followed. He stalked briskly to the chair, sat down and showed keen interest in proceedings.

"Hello folks," greeted Hord as he walked into the room.

"Well, goodby everybody," he said in passing. "I'm going to a better land I know my sins are all forgiven."

To lighten your burden

LITTLE more than a generation ago wise purchasing—even of the family's necessities—required a great deal of time and effort. Manufacture was limited. Exact articles for particular needs were hard to find. And often one product after another had to be tried before the right one was found.

Today—manufacture that seems limitless has filled our stores with excellent articles of every nature. There are many brands for every need. The discriminating buyer can choose from a great array of goods that are continually being spread before his eyes.

But to buy wisely one must read the advertisements. In the pages of this newspaper, progressive merchants and manufacturers are telling you — truthfully and concisely — about their products. They are anticipating your needs. They know that they must meet your exacting requirements.

Read the advertisements regularly and carefully. They are the daily measure of business progress. They are the means to discriminate buying. They will help you to get the greatest value for every dollar you spend.

The advertisements in this newspaper are a most valuable guide to wise buying.

To lighten your burden

LITTLE more than a generation ago wise purchasing—even of the family's necessities—required a great deal of time and effort. Manufacture was limited. Exact articles for particular needs were hard to find. And often one product after another had to be tried before the right one was found.

Today—manufacture that seems limitless has filled our stores with excellent articles of every nature. There are many brands for every need. The discriminating buyer can choose from a great array of goods that are continually being spread before his eyes.

But to buy wisely one must read the advertisements. In the pages of this newspaper, progressive merchants and manufacturers are telling you — truthfully and concisely — about their products. They are anticipating your needs. They know that they must meet your exacting requirements.

Read the advertisements regularly and carefully. They are the daily measure of business progress. They are the means to discriminate buying. They will help you to get the greatest value for every dollar you spend.

The advertisements in this newspaper are a most valuable guide to wise buying.

Poems that Live

WAKE, LADY!

UP! quit thy bower! late wears the hour,
Long have the rooks cawed around the tower;
O'er flower and tree loud hums the bee,
And the wild kid sports merrily.
The sun is bright, the sun is clear:
Wake, lady, wake! and hasten here.

Up! maiden fair, and bind thy hair,
And rouse thee in the breezy air!
The lulling stream that soothed thy dream
Is dancing in the sunny beam.
Waste not these hours, so fresh and gay;
Leave thy soft couch, and haste away!

Up! Time will tell the morning bell
Its service-sound has chimed well;
The aged crone keeps house alone,
The reapers to the fields are gone.
Lose not these hours, so cool and gay:
Lo! while thou sleep'st they haste away!

Standardizing Greeting Cards

The Women's Auxiliary of the Railway Mail Association, at the twenty-first national convention at Columbus, O., proposed legislation to standardize the size of greeting cards. The standard size would be three and five-eighths by six and one-half inches. The present differences in the sizes of the cards work hardship on the mailman who sorts and delivers, and also there is danger of the small ones being lost and the large ones mutilated.

Women Influence Business

A recent survey by a federal agricultural bureau showed that there has been a decrease of nearly one bushel of wheat per capita in the United States, due to the reducing fad.

The sugar and candy makers are said to be planning an extensive advertising campaign to counteract this same tendency to slimness.

When bobbed hair first became a fad little was thought of the effect on business. But the hairpin industry at home and the hairnet trade in faraway China were both hard hit.

Now makers of hosiery are becoming alarmed over the growth of this stockingless fad. It is said to be gaining acceptance at California and Florida resorts, and it is feared it will spread.

Two methods have been employed by manufacturers in meeting this situation. Some have reduced prices of hosiery. Others have met the menace with a "bare leg" hosiery that is flesh color and without seam.

AKRON PRISONERS DIE; START PROBE

AKRON, Sept. 13.—Coroner M. B. Crafts today investigated the deaths of two prisoners, one from the city prison and one from the Summit County jail, at City Hospital this morning.

The dead are:

Arnold Suess, 19, Cleveland, arrested by city authorities Wednesday morning on a larceny charge.

James F. Runion, 65, Akron, held in the county jail pending grand jury action on a charge of writing "rubber" checks.

The death of the Suess youth left upon Coroner Crafts the necessity of determining whether the failure of police to provide an insulin treatment for the prisoner caused death.

The Cleveland youth, one of four arrested Wednesday, was a sufferer of sugar diabetes. No insulin treatment was administered him in jail. Thursday he was removed to the hospital.

A post-mortem examination revealed he had died either from rat poison or dissinfectant.

Jailor Wade Stizlein said there was neither of these poisons near Suess' cell.

CHILDREN COMPOSE BANDIT GANG FOUND ACTIVE IN TOLEDO

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 13.—A bandit gang, composed of a thirteen-year-old girl, another sixteen years old, two seventeen year old youths and four men, had been broken today with the arrest of all eight of the robbers.

Police say the girls and two of the men have confessed that the gang has been responsible for more than a dozen holdups here recently.

Through the widely varied personnel of the gang all types of crimes were committed, holdups, house prowls, purse snatching and auto thefts.

In several of the holdups the girls were used as decoys to lure victims into autos, later to be robbed bythe men, who had been concealed in the rumble seat of the car.

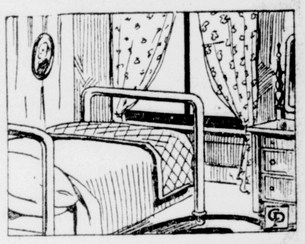

One of the girls admitted the gang had stolen at least six autos in the last few months. One of the autos and a considerable quantity of loot taken in the holdups and prowls have been recovered by police.

Loot recovered was valued at $2,000.

The suspects were arrested early today by detectives through the license number of an auto in which Frank Herman was robbed Wednesday night.

Herman was robbed of $3 and a watch when he accepted a ride from the sixteen-year-old girl. After riding a short distance a man hiding in the rumble seat covered him with a revolver and took his money.

Dry Battle Figures

Prohibition has split the town of Sharpsburg, Ia., in two. Half the townsfolk are espousing the cause of the Rev. C. H. Platt, above, who was indicted for personally raiding the drug store of Ole Nelson, in search of liquor, and the other half backs Nelson. Nelson charges the pastor wielded a hatchet in the store and also brandished it during a hand-to-hand encounter with him. No liquor was found.

Poems that Live

WAKE, LADY!

UP! quit thy bower! late wears the hour,
Long have the rooks cawed around the tower;
O'er flower and tree loud hums the bee,
And the wild kid sports merrily.
The sun is bright, the sun is clear:
Wake, lady, wake! and hasten here.

Up! maiden fair, and bind thy hair,
And rouse thee in the breezy air!
The lulling stream that soothed thy dream
Is dancing in the sunny beam.
Waste not these hours, so fresh and gay;
Leave thy soft couch, and haste away!

Up! Time will tell the morning bell
Its service-sound has chimed well;
The aged crone keeps house alone,
The reapers to the fields are gone.
Lose not these hours, so cool and gay:
Lo! while thou sleep'st they haste away!

Standardizing Greeting Cards

The Women's Auxiliary of the Railway Mail Association, at the twenty-first national convention at Columbus, O., proposed legislation to standardize the size of greeting cards. The standard size would be three and five-eighths by six and one-half inches. The present differences in the sizes of the cards work hardship on the mailman who sorts and delivers, and also there is danger of the small ones being lost and the large ones mutilated.

Women Influence Business

A recent survey by a federal agricultural bureau showed that there has been a decrease of nearly one bushel of wheat per capita in the United States, due to the reducing fad.

The sugar and candy makers are said to be planning an extensive advertising campaign to counteract this same tendency to slimness.

When bobbed hair first became a fad little was thought of the effect on business. But the hairpin industry at home and the hairnet trade in faraway China were both hard hit.

Now makers of hosiery are becoming alarmed over the growth of this stockingless fad. It is said to be gaining acceptance at California and Florida resorts, and it is feared it will spread.

Two methods have been employed by manufacturers in meeting this situation. Some have reduced prices of hosiery. Others have met the menace with a "bare leg" hosiery that is flesh color and without seam.

AKRON PRISONERS DIE; START PROBE

AKRON, Sept. 13.—Coroner M. B. Crafts today investigated the deaths of two prisoners, one from the city prison and one from the Summit County jail, at City Hospital this morning.

The dead are:

Arnold Suess, 19, Cleveland, arrested by city authorities Wednesday morning on a larceny charge.

James F. Runion, 65, Akron, held in the county jail pending grand jury action on a charge of writing "rubber" checks.

The death of the Suess youth left upon Coroner Crafts the necessity of determining whether the failure of police to provide an insulin treatment for the prisoner caused death.

The Cleveland youth, one of four arrested Wednesday, was a sufferer of sugar diabetes. No insulin treatment was administered him in jail. Thursday he was removed to the hospital.

A post-mortem examination revealed he had died either from rat poison or dissinfectant.

Jailor Wade Stizlein said there was neither of these poisons near Suess' cell.

CHILDREN COMPOSE BANDIT GANG FOUND ACTIVE IN TOLEDO

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 13.—A bandit gang, composed of a thirteen-year-old girl, another sixteen years old, two seventeen year old youths and four men, had been broken today with the arrest of all eight of the robbers.

Police say the girls and two of the men have confessed that the gang has been responsible for more than a dozen holdups here recently.

Through the widely varied personnel of the gang all types of crimes were committed, holdups, house prowls, purse snatching and auto thefts.

In several of the holdups the girls were used as decoys to lure victims into autos, later to be robbed bythe men, who had been concealed in the rumble seat of the car.

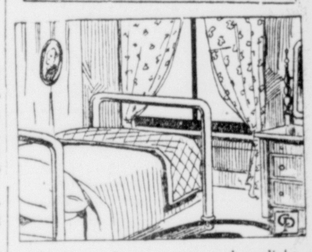

One of the girls admitted the gang had stolen at least six autos in the last few months. One of the autos and a considerable quantity of loot taken in the holdups and prowls have been recovered by police.

Loot recovered was valued at $2,000.

The suspects were arrested early today by detectives through the license number of an auto in which Frank Herman was robbed Wednesday night.

Herman was robbed of $3 and a watch when he accepted a ride from the sixteen-year-old girl. After riding a short distance a man hiding in the rumble seat covered him with a revolver and took his money.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE POTENCY OF FAITH—Jesus said: If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove: and nothing shall be impossible unto you.—Matthew 17:20.

A CAUSE HE OMITTED

In the course of a talk at the International Congress of Psychology, Professor Frank Freeman of Cornell university reported on a survey made to find out why students "of great aptitude" sometimes fall short of the academic grades they might reasonably be expected to make. Dr. Freeman said that "many students of superior ability do poorly," because of lack of interest, poor habits of study, loafing, extra curricular competitions, work for self-support, independent reading or social activities.

We feel confident that few people who are familiar with young people are likely to quarrel much with the doctor's general diagnosis, which he might have made without indulging in any very extensive research, and on the strength of ordinary observation. But it seems to us that he left out of his reckoning one important cause for poor work among young men and women with exceptional minds.

The keener and more capacious the intellect of a student, the more he needs and demands in an instructor, and the easier it is for him to become bored and careless with a teacher who is slow or commonplace, and perhaps inclined to purvey what is obvious and dry as dust. And boredom and carelessness are desperate foes of scholarship.

Unquestionably some bright youngsters fail to shine scholastically in college because they are unable to find professors capable of interesting them in their studies. Perhaps nobody is to blame for that. Natural brilliancy is the heritage of only a few people, and there is no law of nature which irresistibly brings the "best minds" among teachers and students together. But we do think that a full understanding of the reason why some promising youngsters make mediocre records in colleges can be obtained only by recognizing a condition of maladjustment between pedagogue and pupil, for which the former is responsible.

The Root world court reservation formula has gained favor in Europe, but the senate of the United States is another matter.

Speaking of calendar changes, why not eliminate the pictures of sketchily clad females for a while. They are getting monotonous.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—When prohibition sent the old Waldorf bar, of happy memory, into the land of the mustache cup and the Wooden Indian, the hotel cut up its defunct Irrigation Bureau into small shops that catered to exclusive trade.

When the wreckers began the formal work of converting the stately red pile into a moldy memory, most of the small shop proprietors packed up and got out. Some two or three remained to take advantage of an extra few days until the wreckers should come directly over head. The two or three who stayed soon found themselves with neighbors—little fly-by-night merchants who had moved into the shops vacated by the others to pick up a stray penny or two.

Notice came recently that they'd all have to be out by a certain day and each of them stuck out a sign so advising the public. The few old-time shops went down with colors flying. Amid the turmoil of crashing steel and stone, splintering beams and crumbling masonary their farewell notices were chaste and proper as the Pastor's Pants, quite in contrast to the announcements of the flying-by-nights, who blazoned the termination of their ephemeral stay in stud-horse letters of many hues. One such sign read: "Down and Out. The Building's coming Down. We're on our way Out!"

GEORGE COHAN'S STILL ON TOP

No better showman than George Cohan ever lived. He's getting old now. His hair is whitening rapidly—nature's gentle reminder that winter's 'round the corner. But he's the same genial gentleman that ever he was. He looks on life with a level, intelligent eye, always the wing of a vagrant smile brushing the corners of his mouth.

He's been "quitting" the show business regularly for the last ten years in the way the Lads of the Old Line always "quit"—that is, walking out and slamming the front door in the morning and slipping in by the rear gate at candle lightin' time.

George Cohan could no more resist the lure of the smell of grease paint when 8 o'clock at night comes rollin' around, than he could turn an impecunious friend down. So, with all his brave, blustering talk about "quitting" he's back on Broadway, at the opening of the new season with a knockout of a little show that he wrote and is producing himself, and in which he plays the principal role.

"Gambling" is really one of Georgie's achievements. It's a mystery play that keeps the Sophisticates glued to their seats for two hours. And every night when it's all over he has to step out and take eight or nine curtain calls.

This is just sentimental appreciation on my part. George and I grew up together on Broadway, when Broadway was "Broadway." And it's good to see him still on the crest of the wave, swimming just as strong as ever, and having a mighty good time.

A TIP TO COHAN

There's just one little slip in "Gambling." Mr. Cohan has a police inspector in the play who, in the course of a telephone conversation holds the mouthpiece of the instrument against his chest so that the persons to whom he is supposed to be talking at the other end of the wire cannot hear a remark he directs to a man on the other side of the stage.

If you really want your voice to carry distinctly over the phone, hold the mouthpiece against your chest and talk.

The police inspector should know better, even if George doesn't

WHAT THE SAINTS BEHELD

In 47th street, near Broadway, there's a beautiful church. Clustered about the doorway, each in his separate niche, stand figures of saints staring stonily down on the pavement below.

Passing the church the other day I observed, seated on the broad top step, a hop-head engraved in a mournful retrospect of a blasted life. Nearby lounged two members of the sporting fraternity, persuing a paper call "Racing Form," while beyond them half a dozen embryo gangsters from 14 to 18 blasphemed huskily over their pennies and rolling dice.

Small wonder the saints stared stonily!

YEH!

SMART SPENDING

Eastman, kodak maker of Rochester, again shows the way to wise spending. At a cost of $1,000,000 he will build and equip a dental dispensary in Rome similar to the institution he built in London. American dental methods lead the world. A rich man could hardly make a finer contribution to the cause of health. This man deals in large figures for large purposes.

MR. VOLSTEAD'S OPINION

Nothing in the discussion of prohibition could be more interesting than what Mr. Volstead thinks. Defeated for congress, he has an office in St. Paul where he is a legal adviser in the northwestern prohibition enforcement headquarters.

Mr. Volstead thinks perfect prohibition is as impossible as perfect prevention of murder or robbery. He says the time will never come when it will be impossible for a man to get a drink of intoxicating liquor. Home brew, if nothing else, will take care of that. The sale of malt and hops goes on. He says prohibition has brought prosperity to many.

ENCOURAGING TO SALESMEN

Says Roger Babson: "Next to preachers, doctors, and school teachers, probably no persons do as much real good as honest and competent insurance salesmen. Were I a young man and for any reason could not be in the work I now am in, I would sell life insurance."

Babson is right. Insurance offers a great career of usefulness—growing greater as insurance becomes more flexible and more attractive policies are offered.

POETRY

How would you define poetry? Edwin Markham, dean of American poets, gives this definition: "Poetry is the expression, under the light of the imagination, of the unfamiliar beauty of the world."

It is a good definition. Without some kind of beauty there is no poetry. Often that beauty is close to us. It is in the most familiar and common-place scenes. It takes the eye of imagination to discern it, to call our attention to beauty in the common-place. No poet has ever done this more effectively, more simply and more beautifully than Robert Burns. Burns saw beauty in the simple life of the farm, in the homes of peasants, in the fields.

With the eye and pen of the poet, "unfamiliar" beauty is discovered to be familiar. We need to have it pointed out and interpreted to us.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION WORK SAID TO BE IN HANDS OF RURAL CITIZENS

By DR. C. W. WARBURTON
Director of Agricultural Extension Work

Clyde William Warburton was born at Indepedence, Ia., Dec. 7, 1879. He is a graduate of Iowa State college. He has been with the federal department of agriculture since 1903, except in 1911 and 1912, when he was with a publishing firm. He has been director of extension work since 1922. He is a member of numerous scientific organizations. From 1912 to 1921 he was editor of the American Society of Agronomy Journal.

The extension program in agriculture and home economics is in the hands of the men and women on the farms. It is formulated by the rural people in consultation with the extension agents of their counties after a full and frank discussion of the most important problems of the farm and home.

Fifteen years ago the scattered efforts of the federal government, of some states, and of a few educational and commercial agencies were just being gathered together to form the nucleus of the present nation-wide system. Fifteen years ago there were about 1,800 men and women in the extension work and funds from all sources for extension work totaled about $3,500,000, and this year, for the work in the 48 states and the Territory of Hawaii, funds from all sources budgeted for co-operative extension work amount to about $23,000,000, and the field staff consists of about 5,700 men and women trained in agriculture and home economics.

One of the developments in the last 15 years has been the gradual growth of a service to assist farmers in their marketing problems as well as those of production which had, of necessity, predominated in the early years of extension work. Co-operative extension workers are giving help to groups of farmers in the formation of co-operative purchasing and marketing associations, are making information available to farmers on price trends, on probable supply, and on demand for agricultural products and other economic information. They are helping farmers to standardize their products and adapt their agriculture to meet market demands.

Farm women, too, in increasing numbers, are obtaining the assistance of trained home demonstration workers in their problems of homemaking, and the latest methods of work and management are being used, as a result, in more farm homes each year.

In the training, in the last 15 years, of more than 5,000,000 4-H club boys and girls, in better agriculture and homemaking more than in any other one thing, the extension service has justified its existence

TEAM WORK BUT NOT THE WAY HE EXPECTED

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

American fashions in beauty have come and gone now for more than three centuries. From the earliest days the American beauty has been a distinctly sturdy and "different type," rich in possibilities, rich in variations, but often somewhat lacking in imagination with regard to the great extent of her capacity for beauty.

Gradually, however, the American woman has become more beauty-conscious. As an early Puritan maiden she had beauty of an austere type, which she did not encourage to break the bonds of its austerity. Sweetly modest, shyly natural and unaffected in her appearance, she scorned the artificial aids of beautifying cosmetics, curls, colorful clothes and jewelry. Not only were these considered unnecessary to her personal charm and beauty, but, in fact, they were thought immoral.

The Quaker maid was likewise demure, severely gowned and coifed, entirely unadorned by any of the usual feminine frills and furbelows. "Powder and paint and lace till they faint" was never sung of the Quaker maidens.

By Revolutionary days the colonial beauty had become a more artful type. She powdered her hair and wore black "beauty patches" to emphasize the fairness of her skin. Her costumes were elaborate and coquettish, and her manners, like her clothes, were courtly in the correct European fashion.

Later, much, much later, came the Gibson girl, the American beauty of international fame, who reigned for a long era. Pompadour hair, "ratted" and dressed high upon the head, a freshly colored, flawless skin, tiny waistline, long, full skirts and "feminine" clothes, with laces, ruffles and trailing furs were glorified by the Gibson girl. Yet in her day she was considered a most emancipated and straightforward young woman.

After her came the athletic maiden, mannishly tailored and sensible as to sports clothes and coiffure. While hard at her heels tripped the flapper, the much-rouged, much-lip-sticked, smartly bobbed and slimly dressed, post-war girl, whose day, it now seems, is on the wane. For once more the American beauty shows signs of becoming a graceful lady, with all thought of hoyden days and hoyden ways behind her. "Feminine," trailing lines in clothes are new and fashionable. Sophisticated elegance combines with simplicity to prove that the fashion in American beauty is undergoing another interesting change.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Just how much of a present the government made to the interests represented by the financial house of P. W. Chapman & Co., can only be estimated.

Shortly before President Coolidge's term expired Chapman & Co. relieved Uncle Sam of the burden of the best 11 of the ocean liners which remained on his hands, out of the merchant fleet built up by him during the World war.

They were profitable ships—those 11. They had to be. The government soon found it could not get rid of the vessels it was losing money on. President Coolidge hit on the plan of putting them on a paying basis; then disposing of them. Private captains of industry generally try to keep their dividend-payers and unload their white elephants. Mr. Coolidge reversed this principle.

The folk he sought as customers quickly sensed that he was in a greater hurry to sell than they to buy. Consequently they did not bid liberally, but President Coolidge took what he could get. He deemed the shipping trade a bad thing for the government to be in, and did not balk at considerable sacrifices to end it.

For the 11 ships they acquired from the government the Chapman interests agreed to pay approximately $16,000,000 — $4,000,000 in cash and $12,000,000 on time—long time.

It seems like a large sum.

Still, one of the 11 ships alone—the Levithan—cost about $45,000,000 to build. Doubtless she has deteriorated somewhat, but she must be worth $16,000,000 yet—with the other 10 liners thrown in gratis.

True, the Chapman interests promised to build $80,000,000 worth of additional ships, to go with their nucleus of 11—but the government undertook to put up $60,000,000 of it, in the form of a loan on easy terms, with up to 20 years to repay the last of it.

To make even a good guess at the value of Uncle Sam's gift to the Chapman interests would involve a lot of figuring—of interest rates, questions of deterioration, marine insurance, ocean freights, maintenance costs and other details too technical for anyone but an expert.

At all events, Chapman & Co. considered it a mighty good bargain.

We may feel sure of this—from the glowing terms employed by the firm in the literature it issued, inviting investments in the stock of the corporation which is to operate the Leviathan, the 10 gratuitous ships and the additional vessels to be built later—if ever.

Perhaps it was unfortunate (for the Chapman interests) that Postmaster General Walter F. Brown happened to have been reading some of this highly optimistic literature just before he was reminded of a $2,300,000 annual mail subsidy—to run for ten years, or up to a $23,000,000 total—which the Chapman folk have been expecting for good measure.

Mr. Brown has also been worrying over a sizable postal deficit willed to him by his predecessor.

It was an inopportune moment to mention a further subsidy.

The postmaster general pointed to Chapman & Co.'s literature, to his own department's deficit — and balked.

Chapman & Co. say they do not see how the interests they represent can be required to build the extra ships they are committed to (only three-quarters financed by the government) unless they get that subsidy.

Mr. Brown's attitude is something like — "To heck with the extra ships!"

All Washington is betting — one way or the other—on the outcome.

Chapman & Co. are much aggrieved at so niggardly a questioning of their little item of $23,000,000—and Postmaster General Brown evidently never wil understand "Coolidge economy."

Stuffed Peppers Baked Potatoes
Quick Oven Scones Salad
Peach Cake Black Coffee

Peppers are plentiful in the market now, and they make a delicious main dish stuffed with a mixture of cooked rice, leftover meat, tomatoes and onion, or with bread-crumbs taking the place of rice, and then baked. I have always felt a little guilty that I never scald my peppers before stuffing and baking, but I did not consider it necessary. Recently I read an article by a household expert who admitted that she did not scald her pepers either.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Quick Oven Scones—Two cakes yeast, two cups milk, scalded and cooled; one tablespoon sugar one cup sugar, one-third cup shortening, one egg, one cup raisins, one-half cup citron, six and one-half cups sifted flour, one teaspoon salt. Dissolve yeast and one tablespoon sugar in luke warm milk, add three cups flour and beat well. Cover and let rise in warm place, free from draught, until light — about one hour. Then add butter and sugar creamed, the egg well beaten, fruit well floured, balance of flour, or enough to make moderately soft dough, and the salt. Turn on board, knead lightly. Form into twelve round cakes. Cover and allow them to rise fifteen minutes. Then roll one-fourth inch thick, cut across each way nearly through, making an impression of four cakes. Place in well-greased pans. Let rise about one hour, or until double in size. Then brush with egg diluted with water. Bake 15 minutes in moderately hot oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Peach Cake.—Split sponge cake—either home made or baker's—put together with sliced peaches and cover with whipped cream.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

"Dear Doctor: I want to tell you of my experience in Petersizing. About a year and a half ago I weighed 122. During the summer I worked in a store where candy was sold and I indulged generously, with the result that at Christmas I weighed 143.

"I was desperate, as I was unable to get my clothes on and I couldn't afford new ones. One day I picked up your article in which you gave the foundation diet, followed it, and in eight weeks had lost 12 pounds. I was denying myself foods before I got your instructions, but not intelligently. I blame my entire gain on the nibbling of candies and sweets. Cutting these out, I can lose a pound a week, and still eat as much as I want to at the table. I am now down to 124, and even eat sweets occasionally.

"My whole family has been put on the Balanced Diet, with splendid results. They all say they feel better.

"My reduction has made a great change in my form. I was all stomach before. I enjoy counting calories; it's a great little game! And it's not hard at all. I find I can go without breakfast, but think the best thing for strength and health is to have three meals a day, don't you? "B."

There are a great many who will reduce by simply cutting out the candy and sweets and nuts which are eaten between meals, for by so doing they will cut out 500 to 1000 C. a day. Just the daily substitution of fruit for a rich desert may cause a reduction. But I advise all to learn to Petersize (count calories) for, as you say, Miss B., it makes a game of it and makes it much more interesting.

The time of meals can be arranged to suit your own liking and convenience. For years, I have gone without breakfast, but during my last reducing bout, I took at 10 o'clock a breakfast of 400 calories, consisting of three midget muffins (with the insides scraped out), a quarter of a pat of butter, a cup of coffee, with three measured teaspoons of ordinary cream, one-half level teaspoonful of sugar with a quarter-grain of saccharin ,and one-half grapefruit (no sugar on it). I took this for desert rather than as an appetizer.

At three or four in the afternoon, I had my luncheon and then I took nothing after luncheon except 100 calories at bedtime, usually of hot skim milk. This necessitated, you see, the refusal of all dinner engagements. I did this with the exception of one day a week, when I would take practically no luncheon to allow for an evening dinner. Boy! How I enjoyed it.

Not long ago, I read that some physician (sorry I can't think of his name) recommended very light evening meals while reducing. As he put it, "If you want to be thinner make your breakfast your dinner." I had noticed years ago that I could apparently reduce better by having a very light evening meal, and in my book on reducing, writtten eleven years ago, I say: Slim While You Sleep. However, I have had many letters from our readers who have succeeded reducing nobly, and they took their main meal in the evening. So as long as you restrict your calories to the reducing number, you can really have your meals to suit yourself.

I'm glad your family has benefited by the Balanced Diet. And thank you for telling me of it.

Those who need instructions on how to lose or gain weight may have our pamphlet on the subject, also our article on Balanced Diet, by following the column rules.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Girls who cause their parents worry are generally users of swear words, it has been found by the ever ready statisticians.

No statistics are available on the amount of cussing among girls generally, and how many girls who do not worry their parents are addicted to the habit.

In my day girls did not swear. You simply did not belong to the best people if you said anything stronger than darn, and even that was considered pretty rough.

Cussing is a habit, just like saying please or thanks. You can put just as much feeling into saying "Oh, dear," as you can into saying damn, so that effeminate expression is really swearing, if you want to use it that way.

Swearing is merely giving vent to the emotions of shock or anger. So that the statistics merely show that girls who are behavior problems to their parents are unrestrainedly emotional, lacking in self-control.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a boy of 16 and in love with a girl of 14. We used to go together a good bit, but she acts as though she has lost interest in me. How can I get her back? When I am with her I am shy and don't know what to talk about. What should a boy talk about to a girl?

"B-VILLE."

Find out what she is interested in, clothes, books, music, school, friends, etc., and talk about them. Give her a good time when you are with her and she will be interested in you.

"Dear Virginia Lee: We are two wondering girls coming to you to find out whether this case is jealousy or advice. We were talking to a boy friend the other night and he told us not to go with two certain boys in our neighborhood.

"Shall we pay attention to him? This boy has a steady. Do you think a boy who has a 'steady' and goes with about a dozen other girls when not with her, cares for her? One could have no better friend than this boy.

"BLUE EYES AND BROWN EYES."

As the boy has a girl friend of his own I should think the advice he gave you is likely to be disinterested and that you had better heed it, girls. If the boy's 'steady' does not object to his going with others, it is all right. He might love her, but have an agreement that both could go out with others.

Lonesome and Blue: No, I don't think the fact that the boys' father calls you flappers has anything to do with their failure to take you riding again. They probably are not as strongly attracted to you girls as you are to them. Don't act or talk like flappers and you won't be classed with them, except as men are quite apt to playfully call all pretty young girls by that name. You can't do anything about the matter except to wave in a friendly way when they pass and hope they'll ask to ride again soon.

Spider: As you were in the wrong, at least in part, in your quarrel, don't let pride stand in your way. Call the boy friend up and say you're sorry. He tried to make up afterwards, according to your letter, and you wouldn't, so it's up to you to make the next move.

Blonde and Brunette: If your parents don't disapprove, you are old enough to have schoolboy friends. Don't wave at strange men. Complexion does not make or mar friendships. If a blonde girl and a brunette boy like the same things and have a good time together they will be good friends, otherwise not. Your parents should decide the matter of car riding with boy friends and don't kiss too often or too hard.

"Dear Virginia Lee: No, mine isn't a love problem. I'm a young woman 23 years of age. My height is about 5 feet 2 inches. I weigh about 110. Is that normal weight for my age and height? If not what should my weight be? Thank you. SHORTY."

According to our doctor's chart you should weigh 121 pounds if you are 5 feet 2 in your bare fee-

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

BACK COMES THE DUDE

Peter glanced in the direction Chirper was pointing, and whom should he see but Dawdler the dude. And Dawdler was slowly coming toward them. Peter gave a guilty start. He had been so interested in meeting and getting acquainted with the cheery crickets—to say nothing of the Walking Sticks and that old cannibal, Uncle Praying Mantis that he had actually forgotten all about Dawdler. Now he snatched his cap from his head and waved it at his old friend.

"Know who he is I should! Iv'e spent all morning with him. He is Dawdler, the dude, and one of the best friends I have in all insect land. Well, old chap, you have been making a call of it, haven't you?" called the boy to the Bee as soon as Dawdler drew near enough to hear him. "Did you find out all the scandal in the family? And tell me, did you manage to get inside your Cousin Ant Hill Bee's home?"

Dawdler seemed to have lost his voice. Perhaps the heat had been too much for him or he may have tired himself out gossiping with all his cousins. The Bee fanned his heated face with his right wing, and when Peter saw how hot and bothered Dawdler was, he was glad that he, himself, had had the good sense to keep quiet and cool.

"What a morning I've had!" remarked Dawdler at last, his voice rather faint. "What chatterboxes the ladies are. No sir, I wasn't invited into Cousin Ant Hill Bee's house. She kept me standing in the broiling sun. Wouldn't invite me in because she said the house was all upset from house cleaning. As if I'd have cared. Just like a woman, isn't it? I envy you now, and I find you've spent all this while in the shade."

Peter giggled.

"O, come now, Dawdler, don't take on like that at this late time in the day! You know you love to gossip every bit as much as ever did any lady bee. And time and again I've heard you declare you loved to loll in the sun. If you two do not know each other, it is high time you did. Chirper, this is Dawdler of Bee Villa; Dawler, this is Chirper, the Cricket, and a brother o' an old friend of mine!"

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE POTENCY OF FAITH—Jesus said: If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove: and nothing shall be impossible unto you.—Matthew 17:20.

A CAUSE HE OMITTED

In the course of a talk at the International Congress of Psychology, Professor Frank Freeman of Cornell university reported on a survey made to find out why students "of great aptitude" sometimes fall short of the academic grades they might reasonably be expected to make. Dr. Freeman said that "many students of superior ability do poorly," because of lack of interest, poor habits of study, loafing, extra curricular competitions, work for self-support, independent reading or social activities.

We feel confident that few people who are familiar with young people are likely to quarrel much with the doctor's general diagnosis, which he might have made without indulging in any very extensive research, and on the strength of ordinary observation. But it seems to us that he left out of his reckoning one important cause for poor work among young men and women with exceptional minds.

The keener and more capacious the intellect of a student, the more he needs and demands in an instructor, and the easier it is for him to become bored and careless with a teacher who is slow or commonplace, and perhaps inclined to purvey what is obvious and dry as dust. And boredom and carelessness are desperate foes of scholarship.

Unquestionably some bright youngsters fail to shine scholastically in college because they are unable to find professors capable of interesting them in their studies. Perhaps nobody is to blame for that. Natural brilliancy is the heritage of only a few people, and there is no law of nature which irresistibly brings the "best minds" among teachers and students together. But we do think that a full understanding of the reason why some promising youngsters make mediocre records in colleges can be obtained only by recognizing a condition of maladjustment between pedagogue and pupil, for which the former is responsible.

The Root world court reservation formula has gained favor in Europe, but the senate of the United States is another matter.

Speaking of calendar changes, why not eliminate the pictures of sketchily clad females for a while. They are getting monotonous.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—When prohibition sent the old Waldorf bar, of happy memory, into the land of the mustache cup and the Wooden Indian, the hotel cut up its defunct Irrigation Bureau into small shops that catered to exclusive trade.

When the wreckers began the formal work of converting the stately red pile into a moldy memory, most of the small shop proprietors packed up and got out. Some two or three remained to take advantage of an extra few days until the wreckers should come directly over head. The two or three who stayed soon found themselves with neighbors—little fly-by-night merchants who had moved into the shops vacated by the others to pick up a stray penny or two.

Notice came recently that they'd all have to be out by a certain day and each of them stuck out a sign so advising the public. The few old-time shops went down with colors flying. Amid the turmoil of crashing steel and stone, splintering beams and crumbling masonary their farewell notices were chaste and proper as the Pastor's Pants, quite in contrast to the announcements of the flying-by-nights who blazoned the termination of their ephemeral stay in stud-horse letters of many hues. One such sign read: "Down and Out. The Building's coming Down. We're on our way Out!"

GEORGE COHAN'S STILL ON TOP

No better showman than George Cohan ever lived. He's getting old now. His hair is whitening rapidly—nature's gentle reminder that winter's 'round the corner. But he's the same genial gentleman that ever he was. He looks on life with a level, intelligent eye, always the wing of a vagrant smile brushing the corners of his mouth.

He's been "quitting" the show business regularly for the last ten years in the way the Lads of the Old Line always "quit"—that is, walking out and slamming the front door in the morning and slipping in by the rear gate at candle lightin' time.

George Cohan could no more resist the lure of the smell of grease paint when 8 o'clock at night comes rollin' around, than he could turn an impecunious friend down. So, with all his brave, blustering talk about "quitting" he's back on Broadway, at the opening of the new season with a knockout of a little show that he wrote and is producing himself, and in which he plays the principal role.

"Gambling" is really one of Georgie's achievements. It's a mystery play that keeps the Sophisticates glued to their seats for two hours. And every night when it's all over he has to step out and take eight or nine curtain calls.

This is just sentimental appreciation on my part. George and I grew up together on Broadway, when Broadway was "Broadway." And it's good to see him still on the crest of the wave, swimming just as strong as ever, and having a mighty good time.

A TIP TO COHAN

There's just one little slip in "Gambling." Mr. Cohan has a police inspector in the play who, in the course of a telephone conversation holds the mouthpiece of the instrument against his chest so that the persons to whom he is supposed to be talking at the other end of the wire cannot hear a remark he directs to a man on the other side of the stage.

If you really want your voice to carry distinctly over the phone, hold the mouthpiece against your chest and talk.

The police inspector should know better, even if George doesn't

WHAT THE SAINTS BEHELD

In 47th street, near Broadway, there's a beautiful church. Clustered about the doorway, each in his separate niche, stand figures of saints staring stonily down on the pavement below.

Passing the church the other day I observed, seated on the broad top step, a hop-head engraved in a mournful retrospect of a blasted life. Nearby lounged two members of the sporting fraternity, persuing a paper call "Racing Form," while beyond them half a dozen embryo gangsters from 14 to 18 blasphemed huskily over their pennies and rolling dice.

Small wonder the saints stared stonily!

YEH!

Longacre Lil tells me she will not eat at Schraff's Bon Bon and Biscuit Bazaar until someone invents skid chains for paper napkins.

THE WAY of the WORLD

SMART SPENDING

Eastman, kodak maker of Rochester, again shows the way to wise spending. At a cost of $1,000,000 he will build and equip a dental dispensary in Rome similar to the institution he built in London. American dental methods lead the world. A rich man could hardly make a finer contribution to the cause of health. This man deals in large figures for large purposes.

MR. VOLSTEAD'S OPINION

Nothing in the discussion of prohibition could be more interesting than what Mr. Volstead thinks. Defeated for congress, he has an office in St. Paul where he is a legal adviser in the northwestern prohibition enforcement headquarters.

Mr. Volstead thinks perfect prohibition is as impossible as perfect prevention of murder or robbery. He says the time will never come when it will be impossible for a man to get a drink of intoxicating liquor. Home brew, if nothing else, will take care of that. The sale of malt and hops goes on. He says prohibition has brought prosperity to many.

ENCOURAGING TO SALESMEN

Says Roger Babson: "Next to preachers, doctors, and school teachers, probably no persons do as much real good as honest and competent insurance salesmen. Were I a young man and for any reason could not be in the work I now am in, I would sell life insurance."

Babson is right. Insurance offers a great career of usefulness—growing greater as insurance becomes more flexible and more attractive policies are offered.

POETRY

How would you define poetry? Edwin Markham, dean of American poets, gives this definition: "Poetry is the expression, under the light of the imagination, of the unfamiliar beauty of the world."

It is a good definition. Without some kind of beauty there is no poetry. Often that beauty is close to us. It is in the most familiar and common-place scenes. It takes the eye of imagination to discern it, to call our attention to beauty in the common-place. No poet has ever done this more effectively, more simply and more beautifully than Robert Burns. Burns saw beauty in the simple life of the farm, in the homes of peasants, in the fields.

With the eye and pen of the poet, "unfamiliar" beauty is discovered to be familiar. We need to have it pointed out and interpreted to us.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION WORK SAID TO BE IN HANDS OF RURAL CITIZENS

By DR. C. W. WARBURTON
Director of Agricultural Extension Work

Clyde William Warburton was born at Indepedence, Ia., Dec. 7, 1879. He is a graduate of Iowa State college. He has been with the federal department of agriculture since 1903, except in 1911 and 1912, when he was with a publishing firm. He has been director of extension work since 1922. He is a member of numerous scientific organizations. From 1912 to 1921 he was editor of the American Society of Agronomy Journal.

The extension program in agriculture and home economics is in the hands of the men and women on the farms. It is formulated by the rural people in consultation with the extension agents of their counties after a full and frank discussion of the most important problems of the farm and home.

Fifteen years ago the scattered efforts of the federal government, of some states, and of a few educational and commercial agencies were just being gathered together to form the nucleus of the present nation-wide system. Fifteen years ago there were about 1,800 men and women in the extension work and funds from all sources for extension work totaled about $3,500,000, and this year, for the work in the 48 states and the Territory of Hawaii, funds from all sources budgeted for co-operative extension work amount to about $23,000,000, and the field staff consists of about 5,700 men and women trained in agriculture and home economics.

One of the developments in the last 15 years has been the gradual growth of a service to assist farmers in their marketing problems as well as those of production which had, of necessity, prodominated in the early years of extension work. Co-operative extension workers are giving help to groups of farmers in the formation of co-operative purchasing and marketing associations, are making information available to farmers on price trends, on probable supply, and on demand for agricultural products and other economic information. They are helping farmers to standardize their products and adapt their agriculture to meet market demands.

Farm women, too, in increasing numbers, are obtaining the assistance of trained home demonstration workers in their problems of homemaking, and the latest methods of work and management are being used, as a result, in more farm homes each year.

In the training, in the last 15 years, of more than 5,000,000 4-H club boys and girls, in better agriculture and homemaking more than in any other one thing, the extension service has justified its existence

TEAM WORK BUT NOT THE WAY HE EXPECTED

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

American fashions in beauty have come and gone now for more than three centuries. From the earliest days the American beauty has been a distinctly sturdy and "different type," rich in possibilities, rich in variations, but often somewhat lacking in imagination with regard to the great extent of her capacity for beauty.

Gradually, however, the American woman has become more beauty-conscious. As an early Puritan maiden she had beauty of an austere type, which she did not encourage to break the bonds of its austerity. Sweetly modest, shyly natural and unaffected in her appearance, she scorned the artificial aids of beautifying cosmetics, curls, colorful clothes and jewelry. Not only were these considered unnecessary to her personal charm and beauty, but, in fact, they were thought immoral.

The Quaker maid was likewise demure, severely gowned and coifed, entirely unadorned by any of the usual feminine frills and furbelows. "Powder and paint and lace till they faint" was never sung of the Quaker maidens.

By Revolutionary days the colonial beauty had become a more artful type. She powdered her hair and wore black "beauty patches" to emphasize the fairness of her skin. Her costumes were elaborate and coquettish, and her manners, like her clothes, were courtly in the correct European fashion.

Later, much, much later, came the Gibson girl, the American beauty of international fame, who reigned for a long era. Pompadour hair, "ratted" and dressed high upon the head, a freshly colored, flawless skin, tiny waistline, long, full skirts and "feminine" clothes, with laces, ruffles and trailing furs were glorified by the Gibson girl. Yet in her day she was considered a most emancipated and straightforward young woman.

After her came the athletic maiden, mannishly tailored and sensible as to sports clothes and coiffure. While hard at her heels tripped the flapper, the much-rouged, much-lip-sticked, smartly bobbed and slimly dressed, post-war girl, whose day, it now seems, is on the wane. For once more the American beauty shows signs of becoming a graceful lady, with all thought of hoyden days and hoyden ways behind her. "Feminine," trailing lines in clothes are new and fashionable. Sophisticated elegance combines with simplicity to prove that the fashion in American beauty is undergoing another interesting change.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Just how much of a present the government made to the interests represented by the financial house of P. W. Chapman & Co., can only be estimated.

Shortly before President Coolidge's term expired Chapman & Co. relieved Uncle Sam of the burden of the best 11 of the ocean liners which remained on his hands, out of the merchant fleet built up by him during the World war.

They were profitable ships—those 11. They had to be. The government soon found it could not get rid of the vessels it was losing money on. President Coolidge hit on the plan of putting them on a paying basis; then disposing of them. Private captains of industry generally try to keep their dividend-payers and unload their white elephants. Mr. Coolidge reversed this principle.

The folk he sought as customers quickly sensed that he was in a greater hurry to sell than they to buy. Consequently they did not bid liberally, but President Coolidge took what he could get. He deemed the shipping trade a bad thing for the government to be in, and did not balk at considerable sacrifices to end it.

For the 11 ships they acquired from the government the Chapman interests agreed to pay approximately $16,000,000 — $4,000,000 in cash and $12,000,000 on time—long time.

It seems like a large sum.

Still, one of the 11 ships alone—the Levithan—cost about $45,000,000 to build. Doubtless she has deteriorated somewhat, but she must be worth $16,000,000 yet—with the other 10 liners thrown in gratis.

True, the Chapman interests promised to build $80,000,000 worth of additional ships, to go with their nucleus of 11—but the government undertook to put up $60,000,000 of it, in the form of a loan on easy terms, with up to 20 years to repay the last of it.

To make even a good guess at the value of Uncle Sam's gift to the Chapman interests would involve a lot of figuring—of interest rates, questions of deterioration, marine insurance, ocean freights, maintenance costs and other details too technical for anyone but an expert.

At all events, Chapman & Co. considered it a mighty good bargain.

We may feel sure of this—from the glowing terms employed by the firm in the literature it issued, inviting investments in the stock of the corporation which is to operate the Leviathan, the 10 gratuitous ships and the additional vessels to be built later—if ever.

Perhaps it was unfortunate (for the Chapman interests) that Postmaster General Walter F. Brown happened to have been reading some of this highly optimistic literature just before he was reminded of a $2,300,000 annual mail subsidy —to run for ten years, or up to a $23,000,000 total—which the Chapman folk have been expecting for good measure.

Mr. Brown has also been worrying over a sizable postal deficit willed to him by his predecessor.

It was an inopportune moment to mention a further subsidy.

The postmaster general pointed to Chapman & Co.'s literature, to his own department's deficit — and balked.

Chapman & Co. say they do not see how the interests they represent can be required to build the extra ships they are committed to (only three-quarters financed by the government) unless they get that subsidy.

Mr. Brown's attitude is something like — "To heck with the extra ships!"

All Washington is betting — one way or the other—on the outcome.

Chapman & Co. are much aggrieved at so niggardly a questioning of their little item of $23,000,000—and Postmaster General Brown evidently never wil understand "Coolidge economy."

Stuffed Peppers Baked Potatoes
Quick Oven Scones Salad
Peach Cake Black Coffee

Peppers are plentiful in the market now, and they make a delicious main dish stuffed with a mixture of cooked rice, leftover meat, tomatoes and onion, or with bread-crumbs taking the place of rice, and then baked. I have always felt a little guilty that I never scald my peppers before stuffing and baking, but I did not consider it necessary. Recently I read an article by a household expert who admitted that she did not scald her pepers either.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Quick Oven Scones—Two cakes yeast, two cups milk, scalded and cooled; one tablespoon sugar one cup sugar, one-third cup shortening, one egg, one cup raisins, one-half cup citron, six and one-half cups sifted flour, one teaspoon salt. Dissolve yeast and one tablespoon sugar in luke warm milk, add three cups flour and beat well. Cover and let rise in warm place, free from draught, until light — about one hour. Then add butter and sugar creamed, the egg well beaten, fruit well floured, balance of flour, or enough to make moderately soft dough, and the salt. Turn on board, knead lightly. Form into twelve round cakes. Cover and allow them to rise fifteen minutes. Then roll one-fourth inch thick, cut across each way nearly through, making an impression of four cakes. Place in well-greased pans. Let rise about one hour, or until double in size. Then brush with egg diluted with water. Bake 15 minutes in moderately hot oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit).

Peach Cake.—Split sponge cake—either home made or baker's—put together with sliced peaches and cover with whipped cream.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

"Dear Doctor: I want to tell you of my experience in Petersizing. About a year and a half ago I weighed 122. During the summer I worked in a store where candy was sold and I indulged generously, with the result that at Christmas I weighed 143.

"I was desperate, as I was unable to get my clothes on and I couldn't afford new ones. One day I picked up your article in which you gave the foundation diet, followed it, and in eight weeks had lost 12 pounds. I was denying myself foods before I got your instructions, but not intelligently. I blame my entire gain on the nibbling of candies and sweets. Cutting these out, I can lose a pound a week, and still eat as much as I want to at the table. I am now down to 124, and even eat sweets occasionally.

"My whole family has been put on the Balanced Diet, with splendid results. They all say they feel better.

"My reduction has made a great change in my form. I was all stomach before. I enjoy counting calories; it's a great little game! And it's not hard at all. I find I can go without breakfast, but think the best thing for strength and health is to have three meals a day, don't you? "B."

There are a great many who will reduce by simply cutting out the candy and sweets and nuts which are eaten between meals, for by so doing they will cut out 500 to 1000 C. a day. Just the daily substitution of fruit for a rich desert may cause a reduction. But I advise all to learn to Petersize (count calories) for, as you say, Miss B., it makes a game of it and makes it much more interesting.

The time of meals can be arranged to suit your own liking and convenience. For years, I have gone without breakfast, but during my last reducing bout, I took at 10 o'clock a breakfast of 400 calories, consisting of three midget muffins (with the insides scraped out), a quarter of a pat of butter, a cup of coffee, with three measured teaspoons of ordinary cream, one-half level teaspoonful of sugar with a quarter-grain of saccharin ,and one-half grapefruit (no sugar on it). I took this for desert rather than as an appetizer.

At three or four in the afternoon, I had my luncheon and then I took nothing after luncheon except 100 calories at bedtime, usually of hot skim milk. This necessitated, you see, the refusal of all dinner engagements. I did this with the exception of one day a week, when I would take practically no luncheon to allow for an evening dinner. Boy! How I enjoyed it.

Not long ago, I read that some physician (sorry I can't think of his name) recommended very light evening meals while reducing. As he put it, "If you want to be thinner make your breakfast your dinner." I had noticed years ago that I could apparently reduce better by having a very light evening meal, and in my book on reducing, writtten eleven years ago, I say: Slim While You Sleep. However, I have had many letters from our readers who have succeeded reducing nobly, and they took their main meal in the evening. So as long as you restrict your calories to the reducing number, you can really have your meals to suit yourself.

I'm glad your family has benefited by the Balanced Diet. And thank you for telling me of it.

Those who need instructions on how to lose or gain weight may have our pamphlet on the subject, also our article on Balanced Diet, by following the column rules.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Girls who cause their parents worry are generally users of swear words, it has been found by the ever ready statisticians.

No statistics are available on the amount of cussing among girls generally, and how many girls who do not worry their parents are addicted to the habit.

In my day girls did not swear. You simply did not belong to the best people if you said anything stronger than darn, and even that was considered pretty rough.

Cussing is a habit, just like saying please or thanks. You can put just as much feeling into saying "Oh, dear," as you can into saying damn, so that effeminate expression is really swearing, if you want to use it that way.

Swearing is merely giving vent to the emotions of shock or anger. So that the statistics merely show that girls who are behavior problems to their parents are unrestrainedly emotional, lacking in self-control.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a boy of 16 and in love with a girl of 14. We used to go together a good bit, but she acts as though she has lost interest in me. How can I get her back? When I am with her I am shy and don't know what to talk about. What should a boy talk about to a girl?

"B-VILLE."

Find out what she is interested in, clothes, books, music, school, friends, etc., and talk about them. Give her a good time when you are with her and she will be interested in you.

"Dear Virginia Lee: We are two wondering girls coming to you to find out whether this case is jealousy or advice. We were talking to a boy friend the other night and he told us not to go with two certain boys in our neighborhood.

"Shall we pay attention to him? This boy has a steady. Do you think a boy who has a 'steady' and goes with about a dozen other girls when not with her, cares for her? One could have no better friend than this boy.

"BLUE EYES AND BROWN EYES."

As the boy has a girl friend of his own I should think the advice he gave you is likely to be disinterested and that you had better heed it, girls. If the boy's 'steady' does not object to his going with others, it is all right. He might love her, but have an agreement that both could go out with others.

Lonesome and Blue: No, I don't think the fact that the boys' father calls you flappers has anything to do with their failure to take you riding again. They probably are not as strongly attracted to you girls as you are to them. Don't act or talk like flappers and you won't be classed with them, except as men are quite apt to playfully call all pretty young girls by that name. You can't do anything about the matter except to wave in a friendly way when they pass and hope they'll ask to ride again soon.

Spider: As you were in the wrong, at least in part, in your quarrel, don't let pride stand in your way. Call the boy friend up and say you're sorry. He tried to make up afterwards, according to your letter, and you wouldn't, so it's up to you to make the next move.

Blonde and Brunette: If your parents don't disapprove, you are old enough to have schoolboy friends. Don't wave at strange men. Complexion does not make or mar friendships. If a blonde girl and a brunette boy like the same things and have a good time together they will be good friends, otherwise not. Your parents should decide the matter of car riding with boy friends and don't kiss too often or too hard.

"Dear Virginia Lee: No, mine isn't a love problem. I'm a young woman 23 years of age. My height is about 5 feet 2 inches. I weigh about 110. Is that normal weight for my age and height? If not what should my weight be? Thank you. SHORTY."

According to our doctor's chart you should weigh 121 pounds if you are 5 feet 2 in your bare feet.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

BACK COMES THE DUDE

Peter glanced in the direction Chirper was pointing, and whom should he see but Dawdler the dude. And Dawdler was slowly coming toward them. Peter gave a guilty start. He had been so interested in meeting and getting acquainted with the cheery crickets—to say nothing of the Walking Sticks and that old cannibal, Uncle Praying Mantis that he had actually forgotten all about Dawdler. Now he snatched his cap from his head and waved it at his old friend.

"Know who he is I should! Iv'e spent all morning with him. He is Dawdler, the dude, and one of the best friends I have in all insect land. Well, old chap, you have been making a call of it, haven't you?" called the boy to the Bee as soon as Dawdler drew near enough to hear him. "Did you find out all the scandal in the family? And tell me, did you manage to get inside your Cousin Ant Hill Bee's home?"

Dawdler seemed to have lost his voice. Perhaps the heat had been too much for him or he may have tired himself out gossiping with all his cousins. The Bee fanned his heated face with his right wing, and when Peter saw how hot and bothered Dawdler was, he was glad that he, himself, had had the good sense to keep quiet and cool.

"What a morning I've had!" remarked Dawdler at last, his voice rather faint. "What chatterboxes the ladies are. No sir, I wasn't invited into Cousin Ant Hill Bee's house. She kept me standing in the broiling sun. Wouldn't invite me in because she said the house was all upset from house cleaning. As if I'd have cared. Just like a woman, isn't it? I envy you now, and I find you've spent all this while in the shade."

Peter giggled.

"O, come now, Dawdler, don't take on like that at this late time in the day! You know you love to gossip every bit as much as ever did any lady bee. And time and again I've heard you declare you loved to loll in the sun. If you two do not know each other, it is high time you did. Chirper, this is Dawdler of Bee Villa; Dawler, this is Chirper, the Cricket, and a brother of an old friend of mine!"

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

Here is a tip that can't possibly go wrong for the benefit of those fans who are not averse to a little speculation now and then.

Mortgage the old homestead and bet the entire roll on Charlie Maxton to be the winning pitcher in the game between the Reserves and the South Park Shamrocks of Dayton Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

You can't lose on this wager because Charlie Maxton will pitch for the Reserves and Charlie Maxton will also be on the mound for the Dayton nine.

To explain the riddle the two pitchers have the same names and they are cousins. The Charlie more familiar to local fans has been pitching for the Reserves all season and is the ace of the staff, while his cousin early in the season twirled a flashy brand of ball for the Columbus Senators in the American Association and it is a deep mystery why he was ever released, as has apparently been the case.

Local fans had been following Maxton's career with the "Little Reds" with interest when all of a sudden he dropped from sight and his name never appeared in box scores of Columbus games any longer. His early season performance on the mound for the Senators had seemed to presage a big league career.

Friday the 13th will be unlucky for either the Downtown Country Club or the Harness Cigars, the two teams that are tied for leadership of the National Softball League.

The Downtowners and Harness were billed to play a post-season game Thursday night to decide the league championship and were rained out with the result that the contest was postponed until Friday night.

Both teams expect to make an effort to have all their players on the field and ready to begin the game promptly at 6 o'clock in order that a full nine-inning game may be played before darkness comes.

The following schedule is recommended as an ideal program this fall for any football fan who has the time, inclination and wherewithall:

Sept. 28—Stanford vs. Olympic A. C., at Palo Alto.

Oct. 5.—Nebraska vs. Southern Methodist at Lincoln.

Oct. 12.—Navy vs. Notre Dame at Baltimore.

Oct. 19.—California vs. Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Oct. 26.—Army vs. Yale at New Haven.

Nov. 2.—Southern California vs. California at Los Angeles.

Nov. 9.—Illinois vs. Army at Urbana.

Nov. 16.—Princeton vs. Yale at New Haven.

Nov. 23.—Northwestern vs. Notre Dame at Evanston.

Nov. 30.—Army vs. Notre Dame at New York.

Dec. 7.—Georgia vs. Georgia Tech at Athens.

Dec. 14.—So. California vs. Carnegie Tech at Los Angeles.

Dec. 28.—Stanford vs. Army at Palo Alto.

Athletic Instinct	25%
Speed	20%
Aggressiveness	20%
Brains	20%
Weight	15%

Heisman explains that athletic instinct is the ability to think and act quickly under all conditions and while placing this quality as the most important asset a football player may have, thinks weight is the least important.

The "Park-O-Lights" are all set for another big football season in Shawnee Park this fall and will open their campaign Sunday, September 22. They expect to be somewhat handicapped by the fact the pavilion was constructed in the middle of their gridiron but are undiscouraged and hope to surmount this difficulty. The team will be organized from the nucleus of last season's veterans, which include A. Maxwell, the Finlay brothers, P. Parrett, "Brownie Herr, Fred McCurran and others equally well known in gridiron circles. The new equipment procured this season includes a brand new water bucket, it is said on reliable authority. Organizers of the team point out that this year's team will undoubtedly be stronger than last.

CYCLONE CLAIMS LIVES OF NATIVES

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Many natives were killed in a terrific cyclone which swept the Orange Free State, South Africa, doing incalculable property damage, dispatches to the London Morning Post said today.

The cyclone struck with fullest force, especially in the vicinity of Bloemfontein, Springfontein and Bethany, where buildings toppled and many houses were unroofed. The native quarters at Springfontein were demolished.

WOMEN ON STRIKE

DOVER, O., Sept. 13.—One-hundred women employes of the Dover Manufacturing Co., are on strike today following a ruling that no more married women could be employed. Only one woman remained at her post.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN MAXTON MEETS MAXTON TO BE SEEN HERE

Charlie Maxton will oppose Charlie Maxton on the mound when the Xenia Reserves meet the South Park Shamrocks of Dayton in a game booked for Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

Local fans are assured of an unusual treat as the Charlie who has been pitching a majority of the Reserve games this season is slated to hurl against his cousin, of the same name, who early this season was one of the most promising pitchers on the staff of the Columbus Senators of the American Association.

The Columbus Charlie was recently acquired by the Shamrocks and has undoubtedly strengthened the Dayton team greatly, as indicated by the fact the Shamrocks last Sunday trounced the American Railway Express team of Dayton.

The Railway Express is best remembered by fans this season as being the nemesis of the Reserves. The only defeats suffered by the Reserves this season have been inflicted by the Express nine and the reverses at the hands of this team now total three as against one victory achieved by Jesse Chambliss' boys.

The Charlie who pitches for the Reserves is no novice himself as he was formerly with Terre Haute in the Three-Eye League.

DICK MURRELL LEADING HITTER AMERICAN LOOP RECORDS SHOW

Competition for the individual batting championship of the American Softball League this season was exceedingly keen with Dick Murrell, hard-hitting first baseman of the champion Hooven and Allison Co., carrying off first honors with a season's average of .492.

His teammate, D. Kersey, who topped the sluggers until near the close of the season, was runnerup with a mark of .481 while a third H. and A. player, N. Murrell, center fielder, brother of Dick, was third with an average of .452. Another member of the champions, Kearnes, catcher, was also in the .400 class with a .418 average, giving this team what amounted to a monopoly on batting honors.

The league champions had the remarkable team batting average of .367 with nine members of the team hitting better than .300.

D. Murrell also led in the number of hits made with forty-seven in ninety-six trips to the platter and in runs scored personally with thirty-nine to his credit.

Thirty-five players in this league had batting averages exceeding the .300 mark. The list of .300 hitters follows:

DECIDING CONTEST IN NATIONAL LOOP POSTPONED BY RAIN

Settling of a little argument between the Downtown Country Club and the Harness Cigars as to which team is entitled to recognition as the 1929 champions of the National Softball League was delayed for another day when the teams were prevented by rain from playing a scheduled post-season game Thursday night at Cox Field.

Indications early in the day were favorable for the game but an unexpected rain late in the afternoon resulted in a postponement until Friday night at 6 o'clock.

Interest in the play-off game is keen because the two teams have split even in the six games they have played this season, each team having won three times.

Friday's game, providing the weather permits staging of the fray, will not only determine superiority between the two teams but will entitle the winner to play the Hooven and Allison Co., American League champions, in a series for the city softball championship.

IN GRID SCANDAL

Charges hurled by Ralph Vince, top, Cleveland, coach of John Carroll University football team, that representatives of Ohio State University had offered free board, room, tuition and a job paying from $15 to $25 a week to Ted Rosequist, center, Carrolls most promising newcomer, a star high school tackle, have been vigorously denied by Sam Willaman, below, head football coach at O. S. U. Vince says Rosequist told him the offer had been made by an Ohio State senior, Hal Ells, of Toledo, with the backing of Fritz Schweitzer, former president of the Cleveland branch of Ohio State Alumni. Both Ells and Schweitzer have denied the accusations. Rosequist has enrolled at Ohio State.

To finance purchase of the land City Commission recently issued a small bond issue at the instigation of numerous civic organizations.

It is also pointed out that the streets which will surround the building will be eighty feet in width.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

Here is a tip that can't possibly go wrong for the benefit of those fans who are not averse to a little speculation now and then.

Mortgage the old homestead and bet the entire roll on Charlie Maxton to be the winning pitcher in the game between the Reserves and the South Park Shamrocks of Dayton Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

You can't lose on this wager because Charlie Maxton will pitch for the Reserves and Charlie Maxton will also be on the mound for the Dayton nine.

To explain the riddle the two pitchers have the same names and they are cousins. The Charlie more familiar to local fans has been pitching for the Reserves all season and is the ace of the staff, while his cousin early in the season twirled a flashy brand of ball for the Columbus Senators in the American Association and it is a deep mystery why he was ever released, as has apparently been the case.

Local fans had been following Maxton's career with the "Little Reds" with interest when all of a sudden he dropped from sight and his name never appeared in box scores of Columbus games any longer. His early season performance on the mound for the Senators had seemed to presage a big league career.

Friday the 13th will be unlucky for either the Downtown Country Club or the Harness Cigars, the two teams that are tied for leadership of the National Softball League.

The Downtowners and Harness were billed to play a post-season game Thursday night to decide the league championship and were rained out with the result that the contest was postponed until Friday night.

Both teams expect to make an effort to have all their players on the field and ready to begin the game promptly at 6 o'clock in order that a full nine-inning game may be played before darkness comes.

The following schedule is recommended as an ideal program this fall for any football fan who has the time, inclination and wherewithall:

Sept. 28—Stanford vs. Olympic A. C., at Palo Alto.

Oct. 5.—Nebraska vs. Southern Methodist at Lincoln.

Oct. 12.—Navy vs. Notre Dame at Baltimore.

Oct. 19.—California vs. Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Oct. 26.—Army vs. Yale at New Haven.

Nov. 2.—Southern California vs. California at Los Angeles.

Nov. 9.—Illinois vs. Army at Urbana.

Nov. 16.—Princeton vs. Yale at New Haven.

Nov. 23.—Northwestern vs. Notre Dame at Evanston.

Nov. 30.—Army vs. Notre Dame at New York.

Dec. 7.—Georgia vs. Georgia Tech at Athens.

Dec. 14.—So. California vs. Carnegie Tech at Los Angeles.

Dec. 28.—Stanford vs. Army at Palo Alto.

Athletic Instinct	25%
Speed	20%
Aggressiveness	20%
Brains	20%
Weight	15%

Heisman explains that athletic instinct is the ability to think and act quickly under all conditions and while placing this quality as the most important asset a football player may have, thinks weight is the least important.

The "Park-O-Lights" are all set for another big football season in Shawnee Park this fall and will open their campaign Sunday, September 22. They expect to be somewhat handicapped by the fact the pavilion was constructed in the middle of their gridiron but are undiscouraged and hope to surmount this difficulty. The team will be organized from the nucleus of last season's veterans, which include A. Maxwell, the Finlay brothers, P. Parrett, "Brownie Herr, Fred McCurran and others equally well known in gridiron circles. The new equipment procured this season includes a brand new water bucket, it is said on reliable authority. Organizers of the team point out that this year's team will undoubtedly be stronger than last.

CYCLONE CLAIMS LIVES OF NATIVES

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Many natives were killed in a terrific cyclone which swept the Orange Free State, South Africa, doing incalculable property damage, dispatches to the London Morning Post said today.

The cyclone struck with fullest force, especially in the vicinity of Bloemfontein. Springfontein and Bethany, where buildings toppled and many houses were unroofed. The native quarters at Springfontein were demolished.

WOMEN ON STRIKE

DOVER, O., Sept. 13.—One-hundred women employes of the Dover Manufacturing Co., are on strike today following a ruling that no more married women could be employed. Only one woman remained at her post.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN MAXTON MEETS MAXTON TO BE SEEN HERE

Charlie Maxton will oppose Charlie Maxton on the mound when the Xenia Reserves meet the South Park Shamrocks of Dayton in a game booked for Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

Local fans are assured of an unusual treat as the Charlie who has been pitching a majority of the Reserve games this season is slated to hurl against his cousin, of the same name, who early this season was one of the most promising pitchers on the staff of the Columbus Senators of the American Association.

The Columbus Charlie was recently acquired by the Shamrocks and has undoubtedly strengthened the Dayton team greatly, as indicated by the fact the Shamrocks last Sunday trounced the American Railway Express team of Dayton.

The Railway Express is best remembered by fans this season as being the nemesis of the Reserves. The only defeats suffered by the Reserves this season have been inflicted by the Express nine and the reverses at the hands of this team now total three as against one victory achieved by Jesse Chamblis' boys.

The Charlie who pitches for the Reserves is no novice himself as he was formerly with Terre Haute in the Three-Eye League.

DICK MURRELL LEADING HITTER AMERICAN LOOP RECORDS SHOW

Competition for the individual batting championship of the American Softball League this season was exceedingly keen with Dick Murrell, hard-hitting first baseman of the champion Hooven and Allison Co., carrying off first honors with a season's average of .492.

His teammate, D. Kersey, who topped the sluggers until near the close of the season, was runnerup with a mark of .481 while a third H. and A. player, N. Murrell, center fielder, brother of Dick, was third with an average of .452. Another member of the champions, Kearnes, catcher, was also in the .400 class with a .418 average, giving this team what amounted to a monopoly on batting honors.

The league champions had the remarkable team batting average of .367 with nine members of the team hitting better than .300.

D. Murrell also led in the number of hits made with forty-seven in ninety-six trips to the platter and in runs scored personally with thirty-nine to his credit.

Thirty-five players in this league had batting averages exceeding the .300 mark. The list of .300 hitters follows:

DECIDING CONTEST IN NATIONAL LOOP POSTPONED BY RAIN

Settling of a little argument between the Downtown Country Club and the Harness Cigars as to which team is entitled to recognition as the 1929 champions of the National Softball League was delayed for another day when the teams were prevented by rain from playing a scheduled post-season game Thursday night at Cox Field.

Indications early in the day were favorsble for the game but an unexpected rain late in the afternoon resulted in a postponement until Friday night at 6 o'clock.

Interest in the play-off game is keen because the two teams have split even in the six games they have played this season, each team having won three times.

Friday's game, providing the weather permits staging of the fray, will not only determine superiority between the two teams but will entitle the winner to play the Hooven and Allison Co., American League champions, in a series for the city softball championship.

IN GRID SCANDAL

Charges hurled by Ralph Vince, top, Cleveland, coach of John Carroll University football team, that representatives of Ohio State University had offered free board, room, tuition and a job paying from $15 to $25 a week to Ted Rosequist, center, Carrolls most promising newcomer, a star high school tackle, have been vigorously denied by Sam Willaman, below, head football coach at O. S. U. Vince says Rosequist told him the offer had been made by an Ohio State senior, Hal Ells, of Toledo, with the backing of Fritz Schweitzer, former president of the Cleveland branch of Ohio State Alumni. Both Ells and Schweitzer have denied the accusations. Rosequist has enrolled at Ohio State.

President Hoover says, "There is no other book so various, nor one so full of concentrated wisdom. Whether it be of the law, business, morals or that vision which leads the imagination in the creation of constructive enterprise for the happiness of mankind, he who seeks for guidance in any of those things may look inside its covers and find illumination. The study of this Book is a post-graduate course in the richest library of human experience."

In Malachi's day, the years have shown that sin still dwells in the people, and the new prophet of righteousness sees that the processes of separation between the righteous remnant and the sinful must go on. The day of Jehovah's judgment, the day shall consume the wicked, root and branch, is yet to come. Prof. H. T. Fowler.

V. 1. "Behold I send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me; and the Lord whom ye seek, will suddenly come to his temple." The people had not been seeking God with praises but with complaints: therefore the Lord coming suddenly indicated that he was a God of judgment; but there was also mercy in that messenger's proclaiming righteousness.

V. 2. "But who can abide the day of his coming? And who shall stand when he appeareth? For he is like a refiner's fire, and like a fuller's soap." The forerunner's mission is to purity and refine; evil must go out before good can come in; repentance must precede pardon and peace; sometimes men are punished and afflicted that they may realize what sin is.

V. 5. "And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers and against the false swearers and against those that oppress the hirelings in his wages, the widow and the fatherless and that turn aside the sojourner from his right, and fear not me saith Jehovah of hosts." This definite exposure of sin in different phases reads like a present newspaper story; ancient sins are modern and must be dealt with now as then; "for I Jehovah change not."

V. 7. "From the days of your fathers ye have turned aside from mine ordinances and have not kept them. Return unto me and I will return unto you, saith Jehovah of hosts." This charge was the burden of all the prophets; the only hope is for the wrong-doer to turn toward God who welcomes the prodigal's return.

V. 8. "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings." They had robbed God by withholding the gifts they ought to have brought to Him. Not paying what we owe is robbery. Tithing one's income is a practical plan of giving today; it was approved by Christ. Each one ought to have some system of giving and here it is. It is said the the church giving today is done by one third of the church members.

V. 10. "Bring ye the whole tithe into the store-house, that there may be food in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith Jehovah of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." The giving of the tithes is coupled with a great promise. A heart that is generous in giving becomes open and receptive, welcoming God's spirit with all divine grace and blessing. Conversely, the heart refuses to give generously and it becomes cold and indifferent to God and his will.

V. 12. "And all nations shall call you happy; for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith Jehovah of hosts." That community wherein righteousness reigns, is desired; so that nation that makes the kingdom of God first shall be so blessed as to be a happy nation sought by immigrants of the world.

1. What moral conditions are revealed in this prophetic book?
2. What long time religious customs had fallen into disuse?
3. How explain the stern note of judgment of this prophet?
4. What is the Old Testament standard of giving?
5. What is the scriptural rule of giving today?
6. What are some of the roads for the coming of Christ we should now build?
7. What are some of the sins most obstructive to his coming?

Clericus says, "There is an immense amount of robbery of God now going on evidenced by the shortage of men and money in the Kingdom's business, which the churches are fostering; we are guilty of withholding God's tithes and offerings."

LESSON PRAYER

"Keep us from living thoughtlessly and forgetting God; help us to remember that we belong to Thee and we are Thy stewards, generously giving of ourselves and our possessions for the promotion of Thy kingdom."

BOOK REVIEW

SERVICE AND PRAYERS FOR CHURCH AND HOME by Thirkfield, Methodist Book Concern, presents a series of prayers, ancient and modern, for use in church and home as well as for special occasions.

CRADLE-ROLL QUESTIONS, PLANS AND PROGRAMS by Sudlow, Standard Publishing Company answers in a practical way the numerous problems confronting the worker in the Cradle Roll department.

1. WHEN IS A GOOD TIME TO HOLD THE CHURCH SCHOOL RALLY WEEK?

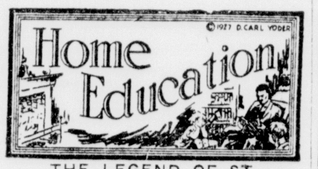

Church School week should be held some time between September 1 and October 27 and should have right of way over all other church interests for that week. Committees should be appointed to prepare carefully for each occasion and program of the entire week.

2. WHAT IS THE PASTOR'S PART IN THE CHURCH SCHOOL RALLY WEEK?

The pastor is the natural leader and inspirer of the whole teaching movement of the church and he should start off the week with a Sunday morning service in which the entire program is devoted to the interest of the church school.

3. SUGGEST WAYS AND MEANS OF MAKING THE WORKERS' CONFERENCE FUNCTION EFFECTIVELY DURING THE CHURCH SCHOOL RALLY WEEK

The opening workers' conference should be held early in the week. Committees should be appointed to survey the school situation presenting their findings by means of graphs, diagrams and pictures when needed. A committee should present a preliminary working plan for the coming year and after thoughtful discussion of this plan the group should select objectives and outline an effective, constructive program.

THE LEGEND OF ST. CHRISTOPHER

There was once a mighty man living in the land of Canan whose name was Offero meaning, the Bearer. Offero was proud of his strength and said he would serve none but the greatest king on earth.

By chance, Offero one day heard a minstrel singing to his king and noticed that whenever the name of Satan was mentioned, the king trembled. When questioned by Offero as to the cause of his trembling, the king said, "I fear Satan. He is as wicked as he is strong."

Offero left the service of the king immediately and went in search of Satan, whom the King feared. He finally found Satan leading a host across a desert. He joined Satan's followers and all went well until they came to a cross roads where stood a cross. When Satan saw this cross, he turned and fled, saying, "I fear the cross because upon it Christ hung and I fly from it lest he destroy me."

Then Offero left Satan and went in search of Christ. After many days he came upon a holy man who said Christ would be pleased if Offero used his strength to help the weak and helpless cross the mighty raging torrent nearby. This Offero did, day after day, until one day Christ came disguised as a little child. After Christ had been carried across on Offero's shoulders, he said, "Thou didst wish to serve me and I have chosen thee as my servant. Thou hast bourne the king of the whole world on thy shoulders." So Christopher meaning "Christ-Bearer" received his naming because he had bourne the Christ.

The annual amount given the Protestant missionary societies in all countries as reported by the International Missionary Council is $60,000,000. The churches of the U. S. give $35,000,000 and Great Britain $11,000,000.

The National Bible Society of Scotland reports that more than 3,000,000 Scripture portions were issued for China last year. In the absence of missionaries, these portions have been sold mostly by the Chinese themselves, despite the confusion of the civil war.

Chinese and Buddhist missionaries have arrived at the port of New York. They are aiming to spread their gospel in this country and are seeking a campaign fund of $250,000 to accomplish this purpose. They are not being disturbed as were the first Christian missionaries to China.

A movement to introduce religion into the public school system of Chicago will be given a two year test beginning with the fall term and applying only to children of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades in three elementary schools. During the try-out period children are to be excused from school an hour a week to attend by the cooperating churches in their district. Attendance will not be compulsory. The school will be under the direction of the Council of Religious Education.

A great statue of Christ the King, visible from the Atlantic will surmount the Metropolitan Cathedral which is to be erected in Liverpool, England. The statue will be illuminated at night and will be a "wonderful symbol to all who pass through Liverpool's gateway to the world". Sir Edwin Lutyens, the architect, will produce in stone the most vivid impression possible of the spirit of the 20th century.

A RELIGIOUS REVIVAL IN GERMANY

Dr. J. B. Fleming in the Edinburgh Evening Dispatch, has given the following heartening picture of the German religious situation: "It is a remarkable fact that Germany is the only country in the world that reports a decided increase in the number of students preparing for the Christian ministry. What is the explanation? We can find no other than that the German Protestant church alone among the Protestant churches of Europe, has lately passed through an experience of religious revival. This has shown itself in increased theological interest, more efficient and united organization, apart from State influence, spiritual movements among youth and a new enthusiasm for social work. A defeated and humble nation has turned to the eternal sources of consolation and strength, and therefore young men, in growing numbers have heard a call to religious duty and effort. On the other hand, most of the nations that emerged from the war with victory on their banners are suffering from spiritual decline and torpor, and the clerical procession is at a discount."

Whether it be of the law, business, morals or that vision which leads the imagination in the creation of constructive enterprise for the happiness of mankind, he who seeks for guidance in any of those things may look inside its covers and find illumination. In Malachi's day, the years have shown that sin still dwells in the people, and the new prophet of righteousness sees that the processes of separation between the righteous remnant and the sinful must go on. The day of Jehovah's judgment, the day shall consume the wicked, root and branch, is yet to come. Prof. H. T. Fowler.

V. 1. "Behold I send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me; and the Lord whom ye seek, will suddenly come to his temple." The people had not been seeking God with praises but with complaints: therefore the Lord coming suddenly indicated that he was a God of judgment; but there was also mercy in that messenger's proclaiming righteousness.

V. 2. "But who can abide the day of his coming? And who shall stand when he appeareth? For he is like a refiner's fire, and like a fuller's soap." The forerunner's mission is to purity and refine; evil must go out before good can come in; repentance must precede pardon and peace; sometimes men are punished and afflicted that they may realize what sin is.

V. 5. "And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers and against the false swearers and against those that oppress the hirelings in his wages, the widow and the fatherless and that turn aside the sojourner from his right, and fear not me saith Jehovah of hosts." This definite exposure of sin in different phases reads like a present newspaper story; ancient sins are modern and must be dealt with now as then; "for I Jehovah change not."

V. 7. "From the days of your fathers ye have turned aside from mine ordinances and have not kept them. Return unto me and I will return unto you, saith Jehovah of hosts." This charge was the burden of all the prophets; the only hope is for the wrong-doer to turn toward God who welcomes the prodigal's return.

V. 8. "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings." They had robbed God by withholding the gifts they ought to have brought to Him. Not paying what we owe is robbery. Tithing one's income is a practical plan of giving today; it was approved by Christ. Each one ought to have some system of giving and here it is. It is said the the church giving today is done by one third of the church members.

V. 10. "Bring ye the whole tithe into the store-house, that there may be food in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith Jehovah of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." The giving of the tithes is coupled with a great promise. A heart that is generous in giving becomes open and receptive, welcoming God's spirit with all divine grace and blessing. Conversely, the heart refuses to give generously and it becomes cold and indifferent to God and his will.

V. 12. "And all nations shall call you happy; for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith Jehovah of hosts." That community wherein righteousness reigns, is desired; so that nation that makes the kingdom of God first shall be so blessed as to be a happy nation sought by immigrants of the world.

Discussion Questions on S.S. Lesson

©1927 D.CARL YODER

1. What moral conditions are revealed in this prophetic book?
2. What long time religious customs had fallen into disuse?
3. How explain the stern note of judgment of this prophet?
4. What is the Old Testament standard of giving?
5. What is the scriptural rule of giving today?
6. What are some of the roads for the coming of Christ we should now build?
7. What are some of the sins most obstructive to his coming?

Clericus says, "There is an immense amount of robbery of God now going on evidenced by the shortage of men and money in the Kingdom's business, which the churches are fostering; we are guilty of withholding God's tithes and offerings."

LESSON PRAYER

"Keep us from living thoughtlessly and forgetting God; help us to remember that we belong to Thee and we are Thy stewards, generously giving of ourselves and our possessions for the promotion of Thy kingdom."

Church Forum

©1927 D.CARL YODER

1. WHEN IS A GOOD TIME TO HOLD THE CHURCH SCHOOL RALLY WEEK?

Church School week should be held some time between September 1 and October 27 and should have right of way over all other church interests for that week. Committees should be appointed to prepare carefully for each occasion and program of the entire week.

2. WHAT IS THE PASTOR'S PART IN THE CHURCH SCHOOL RALLY WEEK?

The pastor is the natural leader and inspirer of the whole teaching movement of the church and he should start off the week with a Sunday morning service in which the entire program is devoted to the interest of the church school.

3. SUGGEST WAYS AND MEANS OF MAKING THE WORKERS' CONFERENCE FUNCTION EFFECTIVELY DURING THE CHURCH SCHOOL RALLY WEEK

The opening workers' conference should be held early in the week. Committees should be appointed to survey the school situation presenting their findings by means of graphs, diagrams and pictures when needed. A committee should present a preliminary working plan for the coming year and after thoughtful discussion of this plan the group should select objectives and outline an effective, constructive program.

THE LEGEND OF ST. CHRISTOPHER

There was once a mighty man living in the land of Canan whose name was Offero meaning, the Bearer. Offero was proud of his strength and said he would serve none but the greatest king on earth.

By chance, Offero one day heard a minstrel singing to his king and noticed that whenever the name of Satan was mentioned, the king trembled. When questioned by Offero as to the cause of his trembling, the king said, "I fear Satan. He is as wicked as he is strong."

Offero left the service of the king immediately and went in search of Satan, whom the King feared. He finally found Satan leading a host across a desert. He joined Satan's followers and all went well until they came to a cross roads where stood a cross. When Satan saw this cross, he turned and fled, saying, "I fear the cross because upon it Christ hung and I fly from it lest he destroy me."

Then Offero left Satan and went in search of Christ. After many days he came upon a holy man who said Christ would be pleased if Offero used his strength to help the weak and helpless cross the mighty raging torrent nearby. This Offero did, day after day, until one day Christ came disguised as a little child. After Christ had been carried across on Offero's shoulders, he said, "Thou didst wish to serve me and I have chosen thee as my servant. Thou hast bourne the king of the whole world on thy shoulders." So Christopher meaning "Christ-Bearer" received his naming because he had bourne the Christ.

World Religious News

©1927 D.CARL YODER

The annual amount given the Protestant missionary societies in all countries as reported by the International Missionary Council is $60,000,000. The churches of the U. S. give $35,000,000 and Great Britain $11,000,000.

The National Bible Society of Scotland reports that more than 3,000,000 Scripture portions were issued for China last year. In the absence of missionaries, these portions have been sold mostly by the Chinese themselves, despite the confusion of the civil war.

Chinese and Buddhist missionaries have arrived at the port of New York. They are aiming to spread their gospel in this country and are seeking a campaign fund of $250,000 to accomplish this purpose. They are not being disturbed as were the first Christian missionaries to China.

A movement to introduce religion into the public school system of Chicago will be given a two year test beginning with the fall term and applying only to children of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades in three elementary schools. During the try-out period children are to be excused from school an hour a week to attend by the cooperating churches in their district. Attendance will not be compulsory. The school will be under the direction of the Council of Religious Education.

A great statue of Christ the King, visible from the Atlantic will surmount the Metropolitan Cathedral which is to be erected in Liverpool, England. The statue will be illuminated at night and will be a "wonderful symbol to all who pass through Liverpool's gateway to the world". Sir Edwin Lutyens, the architect, will produce in stone the most vivid impression possible of the spirit of the 20th century.

A RELIGIOUS REVIVAL IN GERMANY

Dr. J. B. Fleming in the Edinburgh Evening Dispatch, has given the following heartening picture of the German religious situation: "It is a remarkable fact that Germany is the only country in the world that reports a decided increase in the number of students preparing for the Christian ministry. What is the explanation? We can find no other than that the German Protestant church alone among the Protestant churches of Europe, has lately passed through an experience of religious revival. This has shown itself in increased theological interest, more efficient and united organization, apart from State influence, spiritual movements among youth and a new enthusiasm for social work. A defeated and humble nation has turned to the eternal sources of consolation and strength, and therefore young men, in growing numbers have heard a call to religious duty and effort. On the other hand, most of the nations that emerged from the war with victory on their banners are suffering from spiritual decline and torpor, and the clerical procession is at a discount."

WHOLE ZOO TAKEN FROM WATER

BEACH HAVEN, N. J., Sept. 13.—Fishermen here have pulled a whole zoo out of the Atlantic.

The creature they towed in after a four-hour battle yesterday seems to have been the result of a merger of a pig, a whale and a bat and apparently it has been having dental trouble.

Here are the statistics:

It is twelve feet long.

Has wings like a bat.

Has a tail like a whale.

Has an eye in each ear, with the ears resembling those of a pig.

Has a mouth twelve inches long on the top of its head, but no teeth.

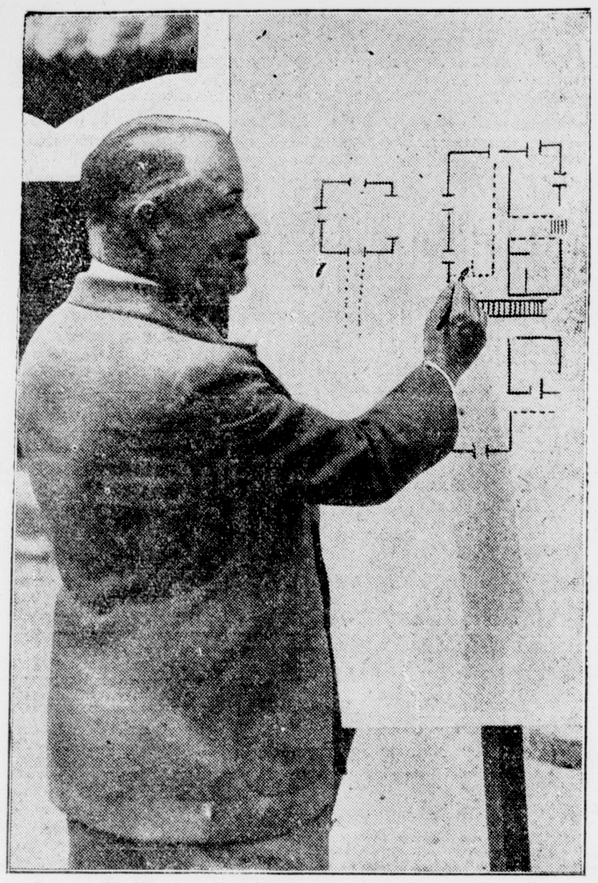

Beyond cojecturing that the creature is a member of the ray family, fishermen are at loss to name their prisoner.

"Miss America"

Miss Lillian Andrus, 18-year-old beauty from Columbus, O., is "Miss America of 1929" with reservations. She was chosen at Baltimore, recently, but Miss Ruth Burnam, of Cleveland, also claims the title, insisting Miss Andrus was not officially entered in the contest which in past years has been held at Atlantic City.

Jiggs and Maggie to Settle Down in California Homesite

George McManus, famous creator of "Bringing Up Father," the popular comic feature of (name of newspaper), is here shown hard at work over the plans of the mansion that he will soon build as his permanent residence at Rancho Malibu la Costa, near Los Angeles, Cal.

THE magic lure of California has attracted many people, but none more notable than Jiggs, Maggie and Dinty Moore, chief characters of George McManus' comic strip, "Bringing Up Father," which is a prime favorite with millions of readers throughout the world.

Which is another way of informing you that the great cartoonist will make his permanent residence on the coast, and is now busy drawing plans for a beautiful and costly home which will be erected at Rancho Malibu la Costa, Cal., situated between the Santa Monica Mountains and the Pacific Ocean.

McManus' housewarming will bring to an end a period of nearly two years of traveling from Los Angeles to New York, in which the famous artist won the title of "the transcontinental commuter." In explaining his reasons for making a permanent residence on the coast, McManus said:

"I love Los Angeles and its beaches. I wouldn't have planned to live the rest of my life there if I didn't think it was the most beautiful spot in the world.

"I am building this home especially for Mrs. McManus, because she is very fond of the ocean and the quiet retreats of Malibu. I am planning a very fine home there, and we both expect to get out of life the very finest there is."

WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY TO OPEN TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17

Wilberforce University will open for the fall term of its sixty-seventh year Tuesday, September 17 with J. L. Clifton, state director of education, delivering the principal address at exercises scheduled for 1 0a. m. in Jones Auditorium of Shorter Hall.

Registration of students starts next Monday morning in the old district school building on the university campus and will continue through Tuesday.

President Gilbert H. Jones called a meeting of the general faculty of the university Thursday morning and in a short talk concerning the prospects for the university during the coming year, asserted a large enrollment is anticipated.

He also explained the terms of a recent agreement entered into by the university department and the C. N. and I. Department designed to raise the standard of the school. HE SUFFERED FOR TEN YEARS

Then ALL-BRAN Brought Relief in 2 Months — Doctor Recommended It

Constipation is dreaded not only for its own insidious self, but because of the many serious conditions and diseases it causes. Mr. Lind was a sufferer—but read how he found relief.

"For the past 10 years I have suffered from piles. At times I have been unable to work. I have tried suppositories, ointments, etc., but to no avail.

"Two months ago my grocer called my attention to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I began taking it regularly. Immediately the pain and annoyance from the piles was relieved. I found that it requires very little ALL-BRAN to give nature a fair chance to effect a cure."—WALTER J. LIND, R. 2, Box 137, Appleton, Wis.

Don't neglect constipation. At any time its poisons may take terrible toll from your health and well-being. Protect yourself. Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily, or in chronic cases, with every meal. ALL-BRAN brings sure, natural relief. It is what doctors call a bulk food. It sweeps the intestine clean and stimulates normal action.

Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Also try the recipes on the package. Results guaranteed. Doctors recommend it because it is 100% bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Served in hotels, restaurants, and dining cars. Sold by all grocers.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHICKEN THEFT

Arraigned before R. O. Copsey, Xenia Twp. justice of the peace, Friday morning on a charge of theft of eighty-three chickens from Maywood Turner, Wilberforce Pike last Tuesday night, Alva Nooks, colored, pleaded not guilty and will be given a preliminary hearing next Tuesday morning. His bond was fixed at $1,000.

A hearing had been scheduled for Friday morning in Probate Court on an application filed by Nooks through his attorney for a writ of habeas corpus in an effort to obtain his release from sustody, but filing of the theft affidavit made the hearing unnecessary.

Two other suspects, Noble Nooks, brother of Alva, and Walter Mason, both colored, also held by authorities in connection with the case, have been released from custody.

WHOLE ZOO TAKEN FROM WATER

BEACH HAVEN, N. J., Sept. 13.—Fishermen here have pulled a whole zoo out of the Atlantic.

The creature they towed in after a four-hour battle yesterday seems to have been the result of a merger of a pig, a whale and a bat and apparently it has been having dental trouble.

Here are the statistics:

It is twelve feet long.

Has wings like a bat.

Has a tail like a whale.

Has an eye in each ear, with the ears resembling those of a pig.

Has a mouth twelve inches long on the top of its head, but no teeth.

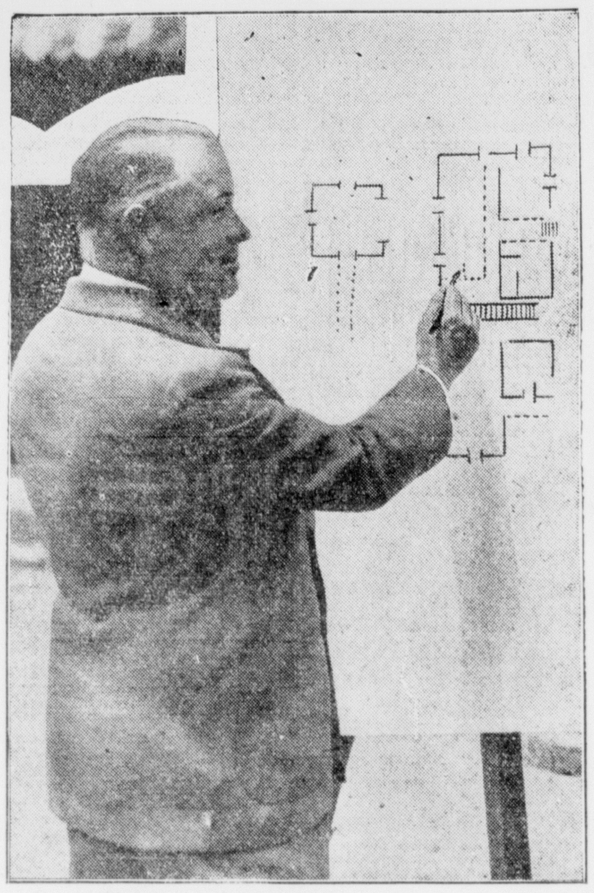

Beyond cojecturing that the creature is a member of the ray family, fishermen are at loss to name their prisoner.

"Miss America"

Miss Lillian Andrus, 18-year-old beauty from Columbus, O., is "Miss America of 1929" with reservations. She was chosen at Baltimore, recently, but Miss Ruth Burnam, of Cleveland, also claims the title, insisting Miss Andrus was not officially entered in the contest which in past years has been held at Atlantic City.

Jiggs and Maggie to Settle Down in California Homesite

George McManus, famous creator of "Bringing Up Father," the popular comic feature of (name of newspaper), is here shown hard at work over the plans of the mansion that he will soon build as his permanent residence at Rancho Malibu la Costa, near Los Angeles, Cal.

THE magic lure of California has attracted many people, but none more notable than Jiggs, Maggie and Dinty Moore, chief characters of George McManus' comic strip, "Bringing Up Father," which is a prime favorite with millions of readers throughout the world.

Which is another way of informing you that the great cartoonist will make his permanent residence on the coast, and is now busy drawing plans for a beautiful and costly home which will be erected at Rancho Malibu la Costa, Cal., situated between the Santa Monica Mountains and the Pacific Ocean.

McManus' housewarming will bring to an end a period of nearly two years of traveling from Los Angeles to New York, in which the famous artist won the title of "the transcontinental commuter." In explaining his reasons for making a permanent residence on the coast, McManus said:

"I love Los Angeles and its beaches. I wouldn't have planned to live the rest of my life there if I didn't think it was the most beautiful spot in the world.

"I am building this home especially for Mrs. McManus, because she is very fond of the ocean and the quiet retreats of Malibu. I am planning a very fine home there, and we both expect to get out of life the very finest there is."

HE SUFFERED FOR TEN YEARS

Then ALL-BRAN Brought Relief in 2 Months — Doctor Recommended It

Constipation is dreaded not only for its own insidious self, but because of the many serious conditions and diseases it causes. Mr. Lind was a sufferer—but read how he found relief.

"For the past 10 years I have suffered from piles. At times I have been unable to work. I have tried suppositories, ointments, etc., but to no avail.

"Two months ago my grocer called my attention to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I began taking it regularly. Immediately the pain and annoyance from the piles was relieved. I found that it requires very little ALL-BRAN to give nature a fair chance to effect a cure."—WALTER J. LIND, R. 2, Box 137, Appleton, Wis.

Don't neglect constipation. At any time its poisons may take terrible toll from your health and well-being. Protect yourself. Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily, or in chronic cases, with every meal. ALL-BRAN brings sure, natural relief. It is what doctors call a bulk food. It sweeps the intestine clean and stimulates normal action.

Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Also try the recipes on the package. Results guaranteed. Doctors recommend it because it is 100% bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Served in hotels, restaurants, and dining cars. Sold by all grocers.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHICKEN THEFT

Arraigned before R. O. Copsey, Xenia Twp. justice of the peace, Friday morning on a charge of theft of eighty-three chickens from Maywood Turner, Wilberforce Pike last Tuesday night, Alva Nooks, colored, pleaded not guilty and will be given a preliminary hearing next Tuesday morning. His bond was fixed at $1,000.

A hearing had been scheduled for Friday morning in Probate Court on an application filed by Nooks through his attorney for a writ of habeas corpus in an effort to obtain his release from sustody, but filing of the theft affidavit made the hearing unnecessary.

Two other suspects, Noble Nooks, brother of Alva, and Walter Mason, both colored, also held by authorities in connection with the case, have been released from custody.

POSSES SEEK NEGRO ACCUSED OF ATTACK ON COUNTRY WOMAN

DANVILLE, Ky., Sept. 13.— A posse of fifty citizens and officers of Danville and vicinity was gathered around a huge tobacco barn on the farm of Fox Caldwell, near here today, searching for a negro who late yesterday attacked Mrs. Ev Hendren, 35, when she was alone in her farm home, one mile from Danville.

Wearing a mask the negro approached Mrs. Hendren as she sat on the front porch. Drawing a knife he placed it against her breast and forced her to enter the house.

After attacking her the negro fled and Mrs. Hendren ran to the home of a neighbor a quarter of a mile away where she notified officers who tracked the negro across a field to Caldwell's barn a mile away. A dog tracked the man into the barn.

The barn is filled with drying tobacco. The posse under Sheriff James Bean, unable to locate the negro in the tobacco last night, surrounded the barn and remained on guard.

This morning they began the tedious process of moving the tobacco bit by bit. It will be almost impossible to locate the negro unless each bundle of the drying tobacco is moved.

SUCH A NICE COUPLE

But Helen And Ben Are NOT In Love, Radio Maid Insists

[Editor's Note: This is another of a series of sketches of the most prominent radio artists of the day. Others follow.]

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Up in the studio they say:

"Oh, my dear, don't Helen and Ben make a nice couple!"

And someone adds with a romantic sigh!

"I just know they must be madly in love with each other or they couldn't sing those love songs and put so much into them."

No Love Lost

Ah, ha, does Helen Nugent boil vore. Right about that time, she confides between prettily clinched teeth, she could smack somebody plenty!

"I am NOT," she fumes quietly, "in love with Ben Alley and he is NOT in love with me. As a matter of fact we fight and don't get along well at all outside of the studio."

"It's better," Helen philosophizes knowingly, "when two people who are theatrical partners that they have no heart interest in each other. They have nothing to detract attention from their work. But, of course, that's not the reason I scrap with Ben. Our temperaments just clash, that's all. Our only harmony is in our duets."

Ben, being a reticent gentleman, will have nothing to say about the matter. It's up to the ladies to dish out those little secrets. Bless 'em.

Helen and Ben were radio artists in Cincinnati five years before they came to New York to shine in the radio firmament. They were with the Zoo Opera Company in Cincinnati, too. Helen is a graduate of Notre Dame academy.

In the Home Town Helen was known as a contralto. But since coming to New York her voice has taken on a much fuller, deeper tone and she is a mezzo.

Ben Likes Ladies

For the benefit of the ladies we might add that Ben is not a woman hater. That is not the reason he sometimes has a tilt with pretty little black-haired, green-brown eyed Helen. Indeed, no!

In fact Helen (surely Ben won't mind) added as an afterthought when she assured the world in general she was not in love with Ben:

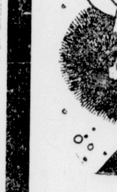

"But, Ben likes girls—very much. I guess we just aren't types that suit each other. That's all."

If anyone dares, she may write a fan letter to Helen or Ben to suggest that "the path of true love never runs smoothly."

(Such a handsome young couple, too. Oh, well!)

Child Urges Probe of Pacifists as Well as Sheaer

U. S. Navy Does Not Approach Britain's in Parity, He Says

RICHARD W. CHILD

RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD, former ambassador to Italy, urged an investigation of the Shearer case broad enough to include lobbies of:

Church organizations.

Pacifist machines.

Foreign propaganda "intended to keep the United States in various states of coma."

Child made this suggestion in a letter to Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

He asserted the United States does not even approach naval parity with Great Britain.

Praised by Shearer

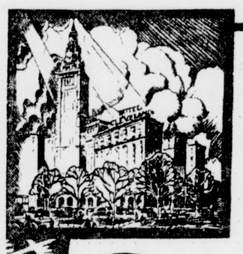

His letter was hailed by William B. Shearer, naval expert now under government fire, as "wonderful," and in full support of Shearer's policies. Shearer said:

"I am more than pleased to find a man of Mr. Child's intelligence and reputation brave enough to support me, who is nobody other than a person with knowledge of what is going on."

Child, writing to Senator Borah from his home in Newport, said:

"The investigation of the Shearer case ought to be undertaken by the Foreign Relations Committee, of which you are chairman. It should be sweeping, i.e., should include not only the shipbuilding companies and their activities, which have shocked the President, but should extend also to lobbies carried on by employees of church organizations and of fanatic pacifists' machines which do not make plain the sources of their funds, or prove their freedom from relationship with radical alien internationals, or with foreign-inspired propaganda intended to keep the United States in various phases of unrest."

The barn is filled with drying tobacco. The posse under Sheriff James Bean, unable to locate the negro in the tobacco last night, surrounded the barn and remained on guard.

This morning they began the tedious process of moving the tobacco bit by bit. It will be almost impossible to locate the negro unless each bundle of the drying tobacco is moved.

SUCH A NICE COUPLE

But Helen And Ben Are NOT In Love, Radio Maid Insists

[Editor's Note: This is another of a series of sketches of the most prominent radio artists of the day. Others follow.]

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. N.—Up in the studio they say:

"Oh, my dear, don't Helen and Ben make a nice couple!"

And someone adds with a romantic sigh!

"I just know they must be madly in love with each other or they couldn't sing those love songs and put so much into them."

No Love Lost

Ah, ha, does Helen Nugent boil vore. Right about that time, she confides between prettily clinched teeth, she could smack somebody plenty!

"I am NOT," she fumes quietly, "in love with Ben Alley and he is NOT in love with me. As a matter of fact we fight and don't get along well at all outside of the studio."

"It's better," Helen philosophizes knowingly, "when two people who are theatrical partners that they have no heart interest in each other. They have nothing to detract attention from their work. But, of course, that's not the reason I scrap with Ben. Our temperaments just clash, that's all. Our only harmony is in our duets."

Ben, being a reticent gentleman, will have nothing to say about the matter. It's up to the ladies to dish out those little secrets. Bless 'em.

Helen and Ben were radio artists in Cincinnati five years before they came to New York to shine in the radio firmament. They were with the Zoo Opera Company in Cincinnati, too. Helen is a graduate of Notre Dame academy.

In the Home Town Helen was known as a contralto. But since coming to New York her voice has taken on a much fuller, deeper tone and she is a mezzo.

Ben Likes Ladies

For the benefit of the ladies we might add that Ben is not a woman hater. That is not the reason he sometimes has a tilt with pretty little black-haired, green-brown eyed Helen. Indeed, no!

In fact Helen (surely Ben won't mind) added as an afterthought when she assured the world in general she was not in love with Ben:

"But, Ben likes girls—very much. I guess we just aren't types that suit each other. That's all."

If anyone dares, she may write a fan letter to Helen or Ben to suggest that "the path of true love never runs smoothly."

(Such a handsome young couple, too. Oh, well!)

U. S. Navy Does Not Approach Britain's in Parity, He Says

RICHARD W. CHILD

RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD, former ambassador to Italy, urged an investigation of the Shearer case broad enough to include lobbies of:

Church organizations.

Pacifist machines.

Foreign propaganda "intended to keep the United States in various states of coma."

Child made this suggestion in a letter to Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

He asserted the United States does not even approach naval parity with Great Britain.

Praised by Shearer

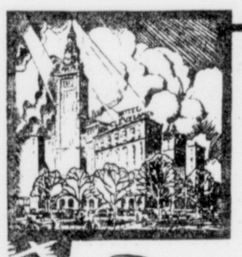

His letter was hailed by William B. Shearer, naval expert now under government fire, as "wonderful," and in full support of Shearer's policies. Shearer said:

"I am more than pleased to find a man of Mr. Child's intelligence and reputation brave enough to support me, who is nobody other than a person with knowledge of what is going on."

Child, writing to Senator Borah from his home in Newport, said:

"The investigation of the Shearer case ought to be undertaken by the Foreign Relations Committee, of which you are chairman. It should be sweeping, i.e., should include not only the shipbuilding companies and their activities, which have shocked the President, but should extend also to lobbies carried on by employees of church organizations and of fanatic pacifists' machines which do not make plain the sources of their funds, or prove their freedom from relationship with radical alien internationals, or with foreign-inspired propaganda intended to keep the United States in various phases of unrest."

SUES EXECUTOR FOR $5,000; PARTITION ASKED; OTHER NEWS

Asserting her mother, the late Mrs. Eliza H. Carruthers, failed to comply with the terms of an alleged agreement entered into in June, 1912, whereby for the last seventeen years until her mother's death last May 23, she has been taking care of her, Miss Ella B. Carruthers has brought suit for $5,000 in Common Pleas Court against William W. Hyslop, as executor of the estate.

It is set forth in the petition that the decedent owned certain real estate, consisting of residence property on W. Market St., and that under the terms of the agreement she agreed to give the property to the plaintiff providing the daughter made her home with her and cared for her.

The daughter maintains the decedent neglected to fulfill her promise and seeks to recover $5,000 declared to be the value of the property involved and which would also be reasonable remuneration for services she had rendered.

The daughter claims she presented her claim to the executor of the estate August 13 but that it was rejected by him. Miller and Finney are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Peach Pie Expert Enters Politics

Mrs. Rebecca F. Hoffman, Widow of New York Jurist, Believes Home Duties Are No Bar to Politics So Decides to Test Her Theory in Election This Fall.

MRS. REBECCA F. HOFFMAN, widow of Judge Benjamin Hoffman, of New York, has been nominated on the Democratic ticket for the office of Register.

Upon receiving news of her nomination Mrs. Hoffman stated modestly that she was confident she would be elected, and if successful in her ambitions would be the second woman in her county to hold an elective office.

"Good food and good politics," she pointed out, have been responsible for the success of her family and those who know her feel that her political activities will be as enduring as the remembrance of the taste of her now famous peach pie.

Speaking of the charming old-fashioned house where she has lived for the past thirty years, Mrs. Hoffman said:

"We have always lived in the sixth district. I was born on Second street, between Avenue A and Avenue B, went to school in this neighborhood, married and settled down here. My children were all born and married in this house and it was in this room that we used to celebrate my husband's political success."

Answering the telpehone and opening congratulatory letters and telegrams has occupied Mrs. Hoffman's time since news of her nomination. Can a woman tend to her home and politics at the same time? Mrs. Hoffman is a vivid example that it can be done. She not only takes care of her large home, but finds time for politics and bridge.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

William Hugh Miller, musical instructor in the public schools and leader of the orchestra, band, and glee clubs in Central High School, is putting forth special efforts to get his Glee Club members in shape for an operetta that he expects to put on the latter part of October. Mr. Miller expects to put on a high school operetta and minstrel show and a junior high operetta during the current school year.

Tryouts are being held this year in order to get the best talent possible. Forty-six girls and twenty-seven boys succeeded in passing the tryout examinations and are now getting down to work on the operetta. The girls' glee club meets on Mondays and Wednesdays of each week, while the boys' glee club meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

It will be remembered that the operetta, "Miss Cherry Blossom" pleased the audience very much last year and this year's performance is expected to be greater than that of last year.

The proceeds derived from the Glee Club performances go to pay off the debt on the new piano purchased last year. The remainder of the debt is expected to be paid off this year if the performances are patronized the way they should be.

The personnel of the girls' and boys' glee clubs is as as follows: Girls—First soprano: Donna Devoe, Marjorie Burr, Helen LeSourd, Sarah Davidson, Thelma Keiter, Bernice Bath, Naomi Henkel, Francis Bryson, Lorena Dean, Georgia Rector, Mary Warwick, Katherine Kingsbury, Viola Conner, Jean Marshall; second soprano: Virginia Watkins Marjorie Shoemaker, Dorothy Ireton, Pauline Tafflinger, Ethel Cook, Janet Frazer, Emily Dean, Marie Williamson, Phyllis Mellage, Eileen Sayre, Anetta Price, Irma Teach, Mary Nel Dunkel, Helen Benbow; alto: Dorothy Crawford, Mary Maxwell, Mary Davidson, Elsie Parks, Virginia Kinsey, Velda Jones, Katherine Keller, Frances Williamson, Margaret Davidson, Eleanor Collins, Irma Van Horn, Helen Jack, Mildred Horner, Mary Waddle.

Nineteen members reported for orchestra and thirteen for band practice. Work was begun at once in earnest and is progressing rapidly.

Fred Saumenig is giving lessons on all band instruments every Wednesday at the Central High School building. Pupils in the Spring Hill and McKinley buildings are also taking lessons from Mr. Saumenig. Quite a number of students in the schools are taking up band work and it is expected that within a few years Central will have a band that will rate with other schools of the same size.

The girls' glee club meets on Mondays and Wednesdays of each week, while the boys' glee club meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

It will be remembered that the operetta, "Miss Cherry Blossom" pleased the audience very much last year and this year's performance is expected to be greater than that of last year.

The proceeds derived from the Glee Club performances go to pay off the debt on the new piano purchased last year. The remainder of the debt is expected to be paid off this year if the performances are patronized the way they should be.

The personnel of the girls' and boys' glee clubs is as as follows: Girls—First soprano: Donna Devoe, Marjorie Burr, Helen LeSourd, Sarah Davidson, Thelma Kelter, Bernice Bath, Naomi Henkel, Francis Bryson, Lorena Dean, Georgia Rector, Mary Warwick, Katherine Kingsbury, Viola Conner, Jean Marshall; second soprano: Virginia Watkins Marjorie Shoemaker, Dorothy Ireton, Pauline Tafflinger, Ethel Cook, Janet Frazer, Emily Dean, Marie Williamson, Phyllis Mellage, Eileen Sayre, Anetta Price, Irma Teach, Mary Nel Dunkel, Helen Benbow; alto: Dorothy Crawford, Mary Maxwell, Mary Davidson, Elsie Parks, Virginia Kinsey, Velda Jones, Katherine Keller, Frances Williamson, Margaret Davidson, Eleanor Collins, Irma Van Horn, Helen Jack, Mildred Horner, Mary Waddle.

Nineteen members reported for orchestra and thirteen for band practice. Work was begun at once in earnest and is progressing rapidly.

Fred Saumenig is giving lessons on all band instruments every Wednesday at the Central High School building. Pupils in the Spring Hill and McKinley buildings are also taking lessons from Mr. Saumenig. Quite a number of students in the schools are taking up band work and it is expected that within a few years Central will have a band that will rate with other schools of the same size.

TEACHERS TO HEAR EDUCATORS HOLD DISCUSSION HERE

More than 200 school teachers, principals and superintendents of Xenia and Greene County are invited to hear Dr. W. S. Guiler of Miami University and W. S. Coy of Columbus at Central High School Xenia, Saturday, September 21 at 1:30 p. m.

A program of diagnostic testing and remedial teaching will be discussed by Dr. Guiler. He has perfected a number of tests and has extensive experience in correcting defects in spelling, composition and English. He will present the possibility of an extension course for the winter to all teachers requiring or desiring professional training.

W. S. Coy will discuss the books selected for the Ohio State Reading Circle this year. He has many years been directing the work of this educational agency.

All teachers needing extension college work are especially urged to attend. A musical program is being arranged.

IMPROVEMENTS ON MANSION FINISHED

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 13—Improvements on the governor's mansion, for which provisions were made at the last general assembly, and which have been underway for some time, are practically complete, according to an announcement from the state architect's office.

Improvements included re-wiring the entire house; installation of new plumbing fixtures; repairing of roofs and replacing hardwood floors; re-painting of the exterior of the house; and repairing of walks and driveways.

The governor and his family are now enjoying the comforts of the mansion for the first time in three months.

ALLOW FRANCHISE FOR POWER LINE

County Commissioners have granted The Dayton Power and Light Co., a twenty-five year franchise for the purpose of constructing and maintaining a pole line for the transmission of electricity on the west side of the Byron Road in Bath Twp., beginning at the south corporation line of Osborn and extending south for a distance of two miles to the Yellow Springs Road. Sixteen abutting land owners along the route consented to erection of the proposed power line.

Coats Are Shorter

Coats are shorter, according to Premet, designer of this effective black and white sports ensemble. The crepella skirt is joined to the sweater blouse with a double row of black buttons. A red, white and green insign decorates the coat dress.

Chicago Publisher Serves in Road Gang

Robert Elliot Burns, former Chicago publisher, has been sent back to the prison farm at Atlanta to serve a sentence pronounced on him many years ago for alleged participation in a petty robbery. Burns had piled up a fortune in the publishing business.

OHIO PINE PLANTINGS REPRODUCE FROM SEED

That white and Scotch pine forests in Ohio will reproduce from seed is proved by numerous seedlings in and near the plantings in the arboretum of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station at Wooster. These one-year old seedlings germinated and developed from seeds dropped last year from 15-year old plantings.

The ability of these valuable species to reproduce naturally in Ohio greatly increases their value in forest plantings. Station foresters now expect planting as they near twenty years of age to begin seeding the surrounding area as well as the planting itself. Small plantings will thus expand naturally by reforesting the adjacent idle land.

Other species of evergreens as they become older will probably produce volunteer seedlings. The white spruce, Norway spruce, and Serbian spruce have abundant crops of cones this year, although the plots have been established only thirteen years, and as the trees grow older the seeds are likely to be viable.

Tulip poplar, black walnut, black locust, hard maples and oaks all produce seed and the plantations of these species will be valuable sources of seed for natural and artifical reforestation.

"Reproduction from pine plantings", "Plantings in Ohio farms and in the state forests in 1929," "The forest tax law," and "Developing forestry in Ohio" are discussed in the September issue of Forest News, published by the Experiment Station, Wooster, Ohio.

CUTTING SOYBEANS FOR SILAGE OR HAY

Soybeans make good silage if they are not too full of sap when cut into the silo. They make good hay if cut a little earlier, when full of pods with the seeds just beginning to form, according to L. E. Thatcher, associate agronomist at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

If soybeans alone are put into the silo, they should be allowed to get as ripe as possible without appreciable loss of leaves. At this stage some of the lower leaves will be turning yellow and the pods will be filled with immature seeds. If necessary to harvest before this stage, Thatcher says the plants should be allowed to lie in the field a day or two until thoroughly wilted so as to reduce the percentage of moisture. Too much moisture in the plants produces a strong, ill-smelling silage.

Sometimes it is a question with the farmer whether to put the soybeans into the silo or make them into hay. A test with dairy cows conducted by Hayden and Perkins at the Ohio Station showed equally good results from feeding corn-soybean hay. The corn-soybean silage mixture was made in the ratio of 1 part soybeans to 2.1 parts corn. An equal amount of soybeans in the form of hay was fed with corn silage in the test.

In filling the silo it is best to feed the corn and soybeans into the cutter so as to obtain a good mixture. The ratio of 1 part soybeans to 2 parts of corn by weight is satisfactory.

Soybeans make good hay when the seeds are just beginning to form. Earlier cutting will give a hay somewhat higher in feeding value but much less tonnage per acre. If cut later than this the yield is increased but the feeding value is less. The palatability of soybean hay decreases as the plants approach maturity.

Late cut soybeans are also more difficult to cure, as the green beans are very slow to dry. They need to be cured thoroughly in the swath or windrow before going into the mow.

Authoress Says Runaway Girls' Actions Justified

Life's Hard Knocks Help the Truants Who Can Stand Pressure

HELEN GRACE CARLISLE

"RUN away from home, girls! But be sure you have a strong constitution—you'll need it!" That is Helen Grace Carlisle's answer to the problem of the runaway girl which is proving so alarming these days to parents, ministers and welfare organizations. The number of young girls who leave home for New York with virgin hearts and hope, and hardly any money, is increasing every year in the most fantastic way.

What happens to these blind mice in the big city? Helen Grace Carlisle has treated the question in "See How They Run." She believes that girls who run away from home have a hard time, but she believes they should do it anyway! At the same time Miss Carlisle admits that New York is the worst place for them. It is a cruel, dangerous city. New York men are predatory in the subtle ways that are most fatal to inexperienced girls.

Miss Carlisle, small, dark and wide-eyed, hardly looking more than twenty herself, is able to speak with authority because she has tried out her theories and seems to have been successful.

The young authoress began her own career as a runaway girl. It was during the war and she had decided to be a pacifist. As a student at Hunter College her name had been in the daily rags for protesting against the war. Her mother, fearing serious trouble, used to lock the girl in her room. One morning Helen packed her suitcase and disappeared. She was free to dabble in pacifism, in socialism, and even to make soap-box speeches. She was very happy, very ignorant, very high-minded.

Then came love, and disappointment, and finally marriage with the charming but penniless young poet. Helen Grace went home to tell her mother about it, and had to borrow a nickel for carfare. The young couple starved in New York and later in London. It was literally love in a garret.

When her first child was born, about two years later, she was faced with having to support not only the baby, but her husband as well. As private secretary in a firm on Wall street, she saw a lot! The taste of adventure lured her again. She went on the road with "The Miracle" company.

She saw life from the wings of a theatre. She learned to know the types of aging chorus-girls who had been engaged to act as nuns in "The Miracle." She made friends of four or five other girls as new to the stage as herself, and this little group shared meals and apartments together in much the same way as the heroines of "See How They Run."

An extremely intense and varied experience of life has been the result for Miss Carlisle of running away from home. It is not the kind of thing that many parents would wish for their children, but it does not seem to have hurt Miss Carlisle. She has discovered, for instance, that "sex is a much overrated pastime" and motherhood the great reality. She has won through to a rich serenity and a knowledge of her own powers.

Now she lives quietly in the country, writing, caring for her children, and discovering for the first time that cooking is a fascinating art. It is no wonder she advises other girls to run away from home!

What Do You Want?

Any two electrical jobs may look alike. One contains cheap materials—the other first grade materials.

Can You Tell The Difference?

Of course you can't. Neither can most people. Why not play safe and be sure to get quality workmanship and materials by letting us do your work.

If It Is A Question of Price

—we can help you. We do not have any high rents to pay for a store room and in that way can give you the same quality work at a lower price.

Mona Motor Oil Does Not Break Down Under Heat

This super-purified oil is the most perfect motor lubricant known, because it is processed far beyond the point where other oils are considered "good enough." Made from 100 per cent paraffine base crude, it is put through the Searle Purification Process, which gives a purity never before known and makes it the highest grade oil in the world.

Try a filling in your crankcase. If you do not then believe it is the best oil you ever used we will return your money on request. And—it costs no more than competing oils of lower quality.

Poems that Live

IF

OH, if the world were mine, Love,
I'd give the world for thee!
Alas! there is no sign, Love,
Of that contingency.

Were I a king—which isn't
To be considered now—
A diadem had glistened
Upon that lovely brow.

Had fame with laurels crowned me—
She hasn't, up to date—
Nor time nor change had found me
To love and thee ingrate.

If Death threw down his gage, Love,
Though life is dear to me,
I'd die, e'en of old age, Love,
To win a smile from thee.

But being poor, we part, dear,
And love, sweet love, must die;
Thou wilt not break thy heart, dear,
No more, I think, shall I!

—James Jeffrey Roche (1847-1908)

RICHEST AMERICAN-BORN LADY

Inheritance of two-thirds of the residue of the estate of William Rhinelander Stewart, whose fortune was estimated at between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000, makes the former Anita Stewart, Princess Miguel de Braganza, of Portugal, left, above, the richest American-born titled lady. Her wealth now exceeds that of Lady Decies, the former Vivian Gould, top; Consuelo Vanderbilt, now the Duchess of Marlborough, center, and Gladys Vanderbilt, Countess Szechenyl, below. The Princess de Braganza previously inherited $10.000.000 from her mother's second husband, Henry Smith, Wall Street figure.

Ball Player's Widow Spurns Tradition; Withdraws Niece

MRS. CHRISTY MATHEWSON

THAT ancient tradition of the family, established by the late Christy Mathewson, famous ballplayer, that all bearing his name should have Bucknell College as their alma mater, has been irreparably shattered.

Miss Grace Mathewson, pretty eighteen-year-old co-ed of Bucknell, niece of the late Giant pitcher, who died at Saranac Lake, N. Y., of tuberculosis some years ago, will not return this Fall to Bucknell, at Lewisburg, Pa.

Christy Mathewson, idol of baseballdom, graduated at Bucknell. The college pointed a prideful finger at that. While in college, Christy met the girl who later became his wife. She, too, is a Bucknell graduate. A year ago, Christy Mathewson, Jr., their son, now twenty-one, received his diploma from the same college. Young Christy lives with his mother. He is an aviator now, owning his own flying field at Saranac.

Two years ago the widow of the famous "Big Six" sent her husband's niece, Miss Grace Mathewson, to Bucknell. It was this same college that had its name emblazoned across the country's newspaper pages three years ago when parents of some of the students there protested against a sex questionnaire being distributed to the students.

However, Grace Mathewson will next week enter Syracuse University, in New York State, as a junior studying to be a teacher of English. For the first time a Mathewson enters an alien institution of learning.

The—dissension. Mrs. Christy Mathewson tells it best in her own words:

"There is no hard feeling on my part against the college. That would be a reflection on the memory of Christy—if I felt bitter. Of course I am hurt. True, as reported, I did have words with Dean Clark, dean of the girls there. I have withdrawn Grace from junior year there.

"My only complaint was to Dean Clark. I have not written to the college authorities. There is no need to be unpleasant. I spoke very plainly to Dean Clark, of course. I had asked that Christy's niece be housed in one of the famous old college buildings at Bucknell. Instead, she was placed in another hall.

"That was the first year. The second year I repeated my request. This was not granted. The girl was told by Dean Clark that 'we do not cater to wealthy people.' I am far from wealthy. I went to Lewisburg and saw the Dean. Then I withdrew Grace."

Poems that Live

IF

OH, if the world were mine, Love,
I'd give the world for thee!
Alas! there is no sign, Love,
Of that contingency.

Were I a king—which isn't
To be considered now—
A diadem had glistened
Upon that lovely brow.

Had fame with laurels crowned me—
She hasn't, up to date—
Nor time nor change had found me
To love and thee ingrate.

If Death threw down his gage, Love,
Though life is dear to me,
I'd die, e'en of old age, Love,
To win a smile from thee.

But being poor, we part, dear,
And love, sweet love, must die;
Thou wilt not break thy heart, dear,
No more, I think, shall I!

RICHEST AMERICAN-BORN LADY

Inheritance of two-thirds of the residue of the estate of William Rhinelander Stewart, whose fortune was estimated at between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000, makes the former Anita Stewart, Princess Miguel de Braganza, of Portugal, left, above, the richest American-born titled lady. Her wealth now exceeds that of Lady Decies, the former Vivian Gould, top; Consuelo Vanderbilt, now the Duchess of Marlborough, center, and Gladys Vanderbilt, Countess Szechenyi, below. The Princess de Braganza previously inherited $10,000,000 from her mother's second husband, Henry Smith, Wall Street figure.

Ball Player's Widow Spurns Tradition; Withdraws Niece

MRS. CHRISTY MATHEWSON

THAT ancient tradition of the family, established by the late Christy Mathewson, famous ballplayer, that all bearing his name should have Bucknell College as their alma mater, has been irreparably shattered.

Miss Grace Mathewson, pretty eighteen-year-old co-ed of Bucknell, niece of the late Giant pitcher, who died at Saranac Lake, N. Y., of tuberculosis some years ago, will not return this Fall to Bucknell, at Lewisburg, Pa.

Christy Mathewson, idol of baseballdom, graduated at Bucknell. The college pointed a prideful finger at that. While in college, Christy met the girl who later became his wife. She, too, is a Bucknell graduate. A year ago, Christy Mathewson, Jr., their son, now twenty-one, received his diploma from the same college. Young Christy lives with his mother. He is an aviator now, owning his own flying field at Saranac.

Two years ago the widow of the famous "Big Six" sent her husband's niece, Miss Grace Mathewson, to Bucknell. It was this same college that had its name emblazoned across the country's newspaper pages three years ago when parents of some of the students there protested against a sex questionnaire being distributed to the students.

However, Grace Mathewson will next week enter Syracuse University, in New York State, as a junior studying to be a teacher of English. For the first time a Mathewson enters an alien institution of learning.

The—dissension. Mrs. Christy Mathewson tells it best in her own words:

"There is no hard feeling on my part against the college. That would be a reflection on the memory of Christy—if I felt bitter. Of course I am hurt. True, as reported, I did have words with Dean Clark, dean of the girls there. I have withdrawn Grace from junior year there.

"My only complaint was to Dean Clark. I have not written to the college authorities. There is no need to be unpleasant. I spoke very plainly to Dean Clark, of course. I had asked that Christy's niece be housed in one of the famous old college buildings at Bucknell. Instead, she was placed in another hall.

"That was the first year. The second year I repeated my request. This was not granted. The girl was told by Dean Clark that 'we do not cater to wealthy people.' I am far from wealthy. I went to Lewisburg and saw the Dean. Then I withdrew Grace."

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Theater

A series of talking pictures starring actors and actresses who in private life are husband and wife is Fred Niblo's ambition as a director.

But if Niblo wants to direct this kind of a picture he is either very courageous or plans to wear a coat of armor to protect himself against any domestic outbursts that may creep into the acting.

"The illusion of romance would be preserved rather than shattered", he contends. "A few years ago screen spouses were kept carefully in the background. Today they are exploited as an asset."

* * *

Niblo pointed out "The Taming of the Shrew" in which Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks are co-starred and "Modern Maidens" in which Joan Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. played, as well-known examples of husband and wife in the same picture.

But the director slipped in the following tsatement: "John Gilbert and Ina Claire should co-star in a comedy drama of sophisticated society. Miss Claire prefers to make screen love to her own husband but I predict they would find fun and success in such an undertaking."

Where the rub comes in, is that shortly after Niblo uttered these remarks, Gilbert and his recent bride had a falling out while honey-mooning in Europe. When Ina said she preferred not to make screen love to her own husband, maybe she had her tongue in her cheek. Maybe she now prefers not to make love to him anywhere. As for a comedy drama, indications make it appear it would come nearer being a tragedy."

* * *

"John Barrymore and Dolores Costello aspire to do a cosmopolitan love story together", says Niblo. "Miss Costello wishes to be known to her fans as Dolores Barrymore. It was opposite Barrymore, then not her husband, that she found fame in 'The Sea Beast.'" Perhaps Niblo did not know when he said this that Dolores is withdrawing from the screen because she is expecting an addition to the family.

"Vilma Banky and Rod La Roque", continues the director, "could be featured in a modern story of high society, where Miss Banky might radiate her refinement and modishness. Ruth Chatterton and Ralph Forbes starred on the stage and hope to appear in famous Shaw and Maugham play successes, as they did for the legitimate.

"Ruth Roland and Ben Bard want to do a story concerning stage life, wherein Miss Roland could display her parlor proclivities while her husband acts as master of ceremonies. Lilyan Tashman and Edmund Lowe have often been shown separately in crook dramas and problem plays. If engaged couples could be considered the list would be endless. Sue Carol and Nick Stuart found success together and expect to co-star for many moons. Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon are to be seen together in 'Her Man', Bebe's next starring vehicle. The public watches eagerly to see how lovers in private life display their technique before the camera. These films build the popularity of players instead of undermining their following."

READ THIS FIRST:

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, and through her Chatty gets a job as switchboard operator in the Van Nuys bond house. There she meets and falls in love with David Jordan, handsome young bond salesman, and becomes jealous of his friendship with Agnes Herford, Mr. Van Nuys' secretary.

Billie Langenau, who works in the office, comes to live in the flat across the hall from where Chatty lives. Chatty's brother, Pud, goes to high school and works evenings in Ben Tomlinson's drug store. Chatty learns that he delivers gin for Ben, and begs him to stop before he is arrested, but Pud refuses to do it.

One day Chatty sees David hand a note to Agnes Herford. Jealous, she goes through Agnes' desk to look for it. It is a simple message about some bonds, but in hunting for it Chatty finds Agnes' diary, filled with the story of her love for her employer. Chatty tears some of the pages out, and sends them to Mrs. Van, and Agnes is discharged. Dave Jordan, alone, knows that Chatty is responsible, and he drops her. Winnie Talcott, the office "vamp," gets Agnes' position. Winnie gets quite chummy with Chatty, and at a party Chatty meets Bryant Dunning, a new bond salesman. Winnie shows Chatty how to paint her face and "doll up." Bryant is married, but tells Chatty he has left his wife.

Agnes calls at Chatty's house and tells Chatty that Mr. Van had never suspected she was in love with him until the diary turned up. Agnes says she has seen Mr. Van at his office, and Chatty promises not to tell a soul.

Chatty decides to tell Mrs. Van about Agnes.

Mrs. Van tells Chatty's mother that she is going away for a while. Chatty guesses it is because of the note about Agnes she mailed a few days before.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

* * *

CHAPTER XXVIII

Chatty stayed hidden in the bedroom until she heard the door of the flat close after Mrs. Van.

When she came out her mother was standing at the front windows looking down into hte street with troubled, thoughtful eyes.

"My, oh, my! There's trouble for you!" she said, shaking her head. "Poor Kate! To think of a thing like this happening to her after all these years of happy married life!"

"A thing like what?" asked Chatty, who knew exactly what she was talking about.

Her mother sighed. "Oh, Mr. Van has been seeing that girl again," she answered. "And Kate doesn't know what to do about it! But she's going to go away for a few weeks, and give him a little absent treatment. I think she ought to stay right at home, myself, where she can keep an eye on him!"

Chatty nodded.

"How did she find out that he's been seeing Agnes?" she asked. "Has she been watching him?"

"No. But somebody has, evidently," said Mrs. Chatterton, her eyes on Mrs. Van's limousine as it turned the corner. "Somebody sent her a letter today and told her that Mr. Van has been having that girl up in his office on the sly—and when Mrs. Van asked him about it he couldn't deny it. He certainly is making a fool of himself.....Well, they say there's no fool like an old fool, and I guess that's about right."

She began to put away the work that Mrs. Van had brought her.

"I'll have to start on that first thing in the morning," she murmured, thoughtfully. "Kate wants it at the end of the week. Well, let's go out into the kitchen and see what we have for supper."

Chatty followed her into the clean, cheerful little kitchen.

"I don't want a thing, myself, but some tomato juice," said Chatty, "with some ice in it."

Winnie had told her that there was nothing like the juice from a can of tomatoes for "picking you up" when you had been having too many things to eat and drink and your stomach was giving you trouble.

He was standing in front of her.

And all day long Chatty had been feeling the effects of the Saturday night party and the drink called "white silk." She was tired and "dopey," too.

"I declare, I don't know what ails you lately. You don't eat enough to keep an ant alive!" said Mrs. Chatterton, taking a plate of cold veal roast and a bowl of sliced cucumbers out of the ice box.

She set them down upon the table and came up to Chatty. She put her hands on her shoulders and her gentle eyes searched her face.

"Chatty," she said, gravely and earnestly, "do you drink?"

"Do I drink?" Chatty repeated the question slowly, to give herself time to think. "Do you mean, do I drink intoxicating drinks?"

She could feel her mother's eyes on her face, but she could not look at her. And she could feel herself growing hot and red.

"You know that's what I mean," her mother said.

Her hands dropped from her shoulders and she moved slowly away from her. She picked up the bowl of cucumbers and began to drain the water from them.

The sound of the clock ticking on its shelf above the sink sounded very loud in the silence of the little room.

"Yes—I do," Chatty said at last. "But everybody does, Mother. And people nowadays think you're a poor prune if you don't take a drink with them now and then."

Her mother shook her head firmly.

"Not all people," she declared with conviction. "People are just the same now as they were when I was young. There were good people then, and bad people, just as there are now, and upon my soul, I think you're going around with some people who aren't what they should be. What do you know about this Mr. Dunning, anyway?"

Chatty didn't answer.....She found herself wondering what her mother would say if she told her she knew that he was a married man, living apart from his wife!

"And this Winnie Talcott—what do you know about her?" Mrs. Chatterton went on with her questions. "I don't like this idea of your staying at her house all night the way you do! I don't like the idea of a girl living alone the way she does—"

"She doesn't, though!" Chatty broke in. "She lives with another girl who's out of town on a vacation. Mabel something-or-other."

"Well, that's just as bad! Two girls living together with no older person to look after them! It's not right. It doesn't look well," said her mother, beginning to slice the cold roast. "And I don't want you to stay there nights any more. I want to know that you're at home safe, before I close my eyes in sleep at night—"

"Yes, and you're dead right, mother!" It was Pud's voice, loud with approval.

He had come into the kitchen, and he was standing in the doorway now, his young, defiant eyes on Chatty's angry ones.

"I know something about that Talcott girl," he said, "and she's all to the no-good, believe me!"

Chatty turned on him, blazing. "Yes, and how do you know about her?" she asked, furiously. "I dare you to tell mother how you happen to know so much about her! I dare you to!"

Without giving him a chance to tell, she swung around to her mother.

"I'll tell you how he knows all about her!" she cried. "He's her bootlegger! That's what he is! He delivers gin to the whole neighborhood for Ben Tomlinson, that's what he does! That's the kind of a son you've got, if you want to know it!"

Mrs. Chatterton stared at her blankly, every bit of expression gone from her face. It was the face of a person too stunned to feel anything.

"Bootlegging?" she asked, at last, a faintly puzzled look coming into her eyes. "Pud? Pud and Ben Tomlinson? Do oyu mean they sell liquor to people? To people in this neighborhood?"

She was beginning to take it in.

Chatty nodded. "Yes, and to people outside this neighborhood!" she said, harshly. "They were selling it at a roadhouse where I happened to be on Saturday night. I saw them! And they're going to be caught, just as sure as anything! And then you'll have a jailbird for a son!"

Pud laughed. "Not me, at my age!" he said, comfortably. "The worst thing that could happen to me would be the Boys' Farm out here, or something like that."

"The Boys' Farm!" echoed Mrs. Chatterton, looking wildly from one to the other of the two angry young faces. "And you, Chatty, in a roadhouse! Oh, my dear Lord, what will I DO with these children?"

She sank down upon a chair, her eyes brimming with tears, her face suddenly covered with a dreadful pallor.

There she sat, looking at them as if they were two strangers whose thoughts and actions were beyond any control of hers.

"I've tried so hard to bring you up to be decent," she said, finally. "I've wroked my fingers to the bone for you—and this is the thanks I get! A daughter who drinks and a boy who sells drinks! Dear Lord, what have I done that I should have such children?"

She got up, went into her bedroom, put on her hat and walked out of the flat.

Late that night Chatty heard her come in. But she was too drowsy to ask her where she had been..... She rolled over in bed and went sound asleep once more.

She was always terribly tired for a day or two after one of the Famous Four's parties.

* * *

On Tuesday morning a girl telephoned the office and asked for Dave Jordan.

Her voice was a low and lovely one. "Could I please speak to Mr. David Jordan?" it asked, slowly and clearly.

Something told Chatty that this was not a business call. With a woman's sure instinct, she knew that it was a personal call for Dave—and so she listened in when she gave it to him.

"Good morning, Dave," the voice greeted him. "This is Lucille. Tom and Ruth are coming over to play bridge tonight, and I'd like to have you, if you're not too busy."

"Just a minute," Dave Jordan's voice answered her. "Hold the line, Lucille, please."

Then there was silence—a silence so long that Chatty finally turned around to see what had happened.

And there was Dave, standing just behind her, looking at her.

"I think I could hear what this young lady wants to say to me," he said, coldly, "if you get off the wire, Miss Chatterton."

He was standing in front of her.

up" when you had been having too many things to eat and drink and your stomach was giving you trouble.

And all day long Chatty had been feeling the effects of the Saturday night party and the drink called "white silk." She was tired and "dopey," too.

"I declare, I don't know what ails you lately. You don't eat enough to keep an ant alive!" said Mrs. Chatterton, taking a plate of cold veal roast and a bowl of sliced cucumbers out of the ice box.

She set them down upon the table and came up to Chatty. She put her hands on her shoulders and her gentle eyes searched her face.

"Chatty," she said, gravely and earnestly, "do you drink?"

"Do I drink?" Chatty repeated the question slowly, to give herself time to think. "Do you mean, do I drink intoxicating drinks?"

She could feel her mother's eyes on her face, but she could not look at her. And she could feel herself growing hot and red.

"You know that's what I mean," her mother said.

Her hands dropped from her shoulders and she moved slowly away from her. She picked up the bowl of cucumbers and began to drain the water from them.

The sound of the clock ticking on its shelf above the sink sounded very loud in the silence of the little room.

"Yes—I do," Chatty said at last. "But everybody does, Mother. And people nowadays think you're a poor prune if you don't take a drink with them now and then."

Her mother shook her head firmly.

"Not all people," she declared with conviction. "People are just the same now as they were when I was young. There were good people then, and bad people, just as there are now, and upon my soul, I think you're going around with some people who aren't what they should be. What do you know about this Mr. Dunning, anyway?"

Chatty didn't answer.....She found herself wondering what her mother would say if she told her she knew that he was a married man, living apart from his wife!

"And this Winnie Talcott—what do you know about her?" Mrs. Chatterton went on with her questions. "I don't like this idea of your staying at her house all night the way you do! I don't like the idea of a girl living alone the way she does—"

"She doesn't, though!" Chatty broke in. "She lives with another girl who's out of town on a vacation. Mabel something-or-other."

"Well, that's just as bad! Two girls living together with no older person to look after them! It's not right. It doesn't look well," said her mother, beginning to slice the cold roast. "And I don't want you to stay there nights any more. I want to know that you're at home safe, before I close my eyes in sleep at night—"

"Yes, and you're dead right, mother!" It was Pud's voice, loud with approval.

He had come into the kitchen, and he was standing in the doorway now, his young, defiant eyes on Chatty's angry ones.

"I know something about that Talcott girl," he said, "and she's all to the no-good, believe me!"

Chatty turned on him, blazing. "Yes, and how do you know about her?" she asked, furiously. "I dare you to tell mother how you happen to know so much about her! I dare you to!"

Without giving him a chance to tell, she swung around to her mother.

"I'll tell you how he knows all about her!" she cried. "He's her bootlegger! That's what he is! He delivers gin to the whole neighborhood for Ben Tomlinson, that's what he does! That's the kind of a son you've got, if you want to know it!"

Mrs. Chatterton stared at her blankly, every bit of expression gone from her face. It was the face of a person too stunned to feel anything.

"Bootlegging?" she asked, at last, a faintly puzzled look coming into her eyes. "Pud? Pud and Ben Tomlinson? Do oyu mean they sell liquor to people? To people in this neighborhood?"

She was beginning to take it in.

Chatty nodded. "Yes, and to people outside this neighborhood!" she said, harshly. "They were selling it at a roadhouse where I happened to be on Saturday night. I saw them! And they're going to be caught, just as sure as anything! And then you'll have a jailbird for a son!"

Pud laughed. "Not me, at my age!" he said, comfortably. "The worst thing that could happen to me would be the Boys' Farm out here, or something like that."

"The Boys' Farm!" echoed Mrs. Chatterton, looking wildly from one to the other of the two angry young faces. "And you, Chatty, in a roadhouse! Oh, my dear Lord, what will I DO with these children?"

She sank down upon a chair, her eyes brimming with tears, her face suddenly covered with a dreadful pallor.

There she sat, looking at them as if they were two strangers whose thoughts and actions were beyond any control of hers.

"I've tried so hard to bring you up to be decent," she said, finally. "I've wroked my fingers to the bone for you—and this is the thanks I get! A daughter who drinks and a boy who sells drinks! Dear Lord, what have I done that I should have such children?"

She got up, went into her bedroom, put on her hat and walked out of the flat.

Late that night Chatty heard her come in. But she was too drowsy to ask her where she had been..... She rolled over in bed and went sound asleep once more.

She was always terribly tired for a day or two after one of the Famous Four's parties.

* * *

On Tuesday morning a girl telephoned the office and asked for Dave Jordan.

Her voice was a low and lovely one. "Could I please speak to Mr. David Jordan?" it asked, slowly and clearly.

Something told Chatty that this was not a business call. With a woman's sure instinct, she knew that it was a personal call for Dave—and so she listened in when she gave it to him.

"Good morning, Dave," the voice greeted him. "This is Lucille. Tom and Ruth are coming over to play bridge tonight, and I'd like to have you, if you're not too busy."

"Just a minute," Dave Jordan's voice answered her. "Hold the line, Lucille, please."

Then there was silence—a silence so long that Chatty finally turned around to see what had happened.

And there was Dave, standing just behind her, looking at her.

"I think I could hear what this young lady wants to say to me," he said, coldly, "if you get off the wire, Miss Chatterton."
